GERMANS LAYING MINES, GOING ON DEFENSIVE NEAR MEUSE

BERLIN REPORTS GREAT ARMORED BATTLES RAGING ON BOTH FLANKS

Enemy Asserts British and American Troops Have Been Shifted to Release Men for Belgium Sectors.

which had driven deepest into Belgium at Celles was encircled and being hammered into disintegration by a ring of guns and armor, and another pocket along the underside of the salient was receiving similar treatment. A front dispatch said two German battalions (perhaps 2000 men) had been trapped near Celles.

The probing armor that had pushed close to Ciney, 15 miles from Namur in the northwestern tip of the bulge, had been beaten back until the battle line ran seven to eight miles southeast of the village.

The main fighting in the Celles area was now in the vicinity of Verre, two and one-half miles to the southeast.

Outcome In Doubt.

It was too early to foresee the outcome, for the Americans in their counterattack now under way faced formidable obstacles. But there were clear indications the bold Nazi bid for a great December victory had run into serious trouble.

The Germans had been held for more than 48 hours up to Wednesday dawn without a significant gain.

One unfavorable report was a dispatch from the Stavelot sector this morning which said that "air activity looked impossible in the early hours of today as a sheet storm covered the front with ice, turning roads into virtual skating rinks." Allied air attacks in the last five days have been on a large scale and have done much to reduce the power of the German offensive.

There were no reports of close support missions over the battle areas today, but American and British heavy bombers from Britain again attacked German rear targets.

A powerful American armored column cut a deep wedge in the German salient from the south yesterday, rescuing the Bastogne garrison which had been under heavy pressure and dependent on supplies dropped by plane.

The Bastogne defenders withstood three fierce enemy attacks in the 24 hours before being relieved. A field dispatch said they reported destroying at least 87 German tanks in the area. At times the Americans were compressed in an area less than 2000 yards in diameter.

The units comprising the Bastogne garrison cannot be identified, but they were veteran outposts. When relieved they were still holding outposts lines about the city.

The Berlin radio said "practically the whole American Third Army" of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton was counterattacking the south side of the German bulge. It reported that Patton was attempting to corner German divisions between the Salm and Ourthe rivers. The Germans said the American garrison at Bastogne was formidable, having among other equipment 120 tanks, Southwest of Echternach in Luxembourg the Germans were retreating and northwest of that southern hinge of the salient, they were repairing an escape bridge under American fire and were preparing to pull back into Germany across the Sauer River.

Farther northwest 250 Germans were seen swimming the Our River, back into Germany.

Three of the American crossings of the Sauer were near Bonn, two and one-half miles northwest of Eschdorf. The fourth was at a place three miles north-east of Marlange. All the crossings were within about 15 miles of Bastogne.

Von Rundstedt's armored probing toward the Meuse were being beaten up badly, though one column did thrust out eight miles south of Celles to the vicinity of Beaulieu, only three and one-half miles from the French border.

"The tide of battle east of the Meuse definitely has turned, with depleted enemy armor almost everywhere on the defensive," said a field dispatch.

The pressing disorganized German armor near Celles, one American tank formation took a large number of prisoners and inflicted heavy damage.

On the southern flank another German force was surrounded at Beaufort, six miles northwest of Echternach.

In advances of two to four miles on the south side of the bulge, the Americans drove the Germans from the villages of Bonn, Insborn, Eschdorf and Lingel southeast of Bastogne and began mopping up Berdorf, three miles west of Echternach.

Germans Lay Mines.

The Germans were busily laying mines, blowing up bridges and making other defensive preparations around enemy-held St. Hubert. Elsewhere German engineers were also laying mines.

The situation in this southwestern tip of the German salient was described as still somewhat fluid, with small groups of enemy tanks roaming the triangle between Beaulieu, St. Hubert and Roche-

BOMBS KILL 8098 CIVILIANS IN BRITAIN IN 11 MONTHS

21,137 Hurt by V and Other Missiles; Total Dead Since 1940 Is 54,205—England Has 24-Hour Respite.

LONDON, Dec. 28 (AP).—German bombs and V-bombs killed 8098 British civilians and seriously injured 21,137 in the first 11 months of this year, the Government announced tonight.

This increased the total dead since Jan. 1, 1940, to 54,205. Deaths in previous years were: 1940, 19,778; 1941, 20,844; 1942, 31,222; 1943, 22,862. Seriously injured were: 1940, 25,665; 1941, 21,788; 1942, 38,953; 1943, 34,049.

The announcement was made a few hours after the Air Ministry disclosed that, for the second time in less than a week, England had had a 24-hour period in which V-bombs did not fall.

The V-bomb long-range bombardment of England until dawn today, although the Berlin communiqué said Liege and Antwerp were subjected to heavy attack.

Last night's respite and that of Christmas day were the only fort, but apparently no thrust in force was shaping up here.

The enemy's heaviest attacks were directed in the northwest tip of the salient, around Humain and Havrenne, six miles southwest of Marche, and Liernux, 20 miles northeast of Marche. These were repulsed.

(The Germans in their communiqué today said an armored battle "of the greatest possible scale" was raging on both sides of the penetration.)

Von Rundstedt's hopes of expanding his salient westward had been blasted by two developments. One was the push northward by the American armored force which linked up with the Bastogne garrison at a point three miles south of that road center.

The second was a series of crushing tank and infantry battles in the Celles area in which the Germans collided head-on with strong Allied forces. After holding on the flanks of the German thrust for 10 days the Americans at last had headed off Von Rundstedt.

Full-Back by Nazi Tanks.

As a result the German commander was reported pulling back into the center of his bulge a large part of his tanks supporting the forces of perhaps 200,000 men in three salients with which he started his smash Dec. 16.

There was a possibility that he believed Eisenhower had massed enough strength to try to smash the bulge, and intended to save his armor for the last, when he would have a better chance to hold the gains. But there also was a possibility he intended to reform and lash out anew.

Associated Press correspondent Hal Boyle, quoted yesterday, said the Germans were setting fire to their tanks and other self-propelled vehicles in the Celles area. Previously, some Germans had been reported abandoning their vehicles for lack of gasoline.

Boyle also wrote that the latest German tank prisoner complained about "the difficult supply situation." He declared they had been without food for one or two days—an indication that the five days of Allied air attacks were beginning to starve both Von Rundstedt's men and machines.

The Berlin radio said last night that the British division had joined with "still another American division withdrawn from the Aachen sector" in a particularly grim counterattack in the north.

All the latest Allied and enemy reports could be pieced into a picture definitely cheering to the Allies, but in his dispatch last night Boyle cautioned that "the enemy might change the situation by hurling in fresh reserves—if any are available—or worsening weather might rob the Allies of the advantage given them by great air superiority."

Gallagher likewise suggested that new crises may come—possibly on other sectors of the western front. "It seems to be little doubt that Von Rundstedt has new blows up his military sleeve," Gallagher wrote.

On the Cologne plain, where the American Ninth and First Armies tried throughout the fall to break through to the Rhine, the Germans have now built two new bridges across the Roer River north of Linlich, Gallagher said, adding:

"At the same time, by controlling dams along the river, they have dropped the height of the water two and a half feet in 24 hours, which would make crossing easier."

The Germans also were watching this sector. One enemy broadcast said "positions of the United States Ninth Army have been taken over by British formations under command of Field Marshal Montgomery" while the Americans were hurried to the Belgium battle.

Nazi Armies Engaged.

Von Rundstedt, it was learned definitely, now has under his command three armies in his offensive.

Associated Press Correspondent Roger Greene said the Germans had committed more than 20 divisions, 10 of them Panzer or Panzer Grenadier divisions, to the battle in Belgium and Luxembourg. He said that this force comprised the "vast majority" of the reserves which Von Rundstedt had hoarded for his offensive.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28 (AP).—The Army and Navy today urged greater use of V-mail in writing to service men overseas in order to conserve transportation space.

PUZZLING PATROL STABS MADE BY NAZIS AGAINST BRITISH FRONT ON MAAS ON THE WESTERN FRONT.

Dec. 28 (AP).

A STRANGE series of German patrol thrusts, too strong for normal reconnaissance and too wary for fighting patrols, erupted against British troops in Holland today.

In groups of from 15 to 30, German detachments crossed the Maas (Meuse) in northwest Holland near Bokhoven, just north of 's Hertogenbosch, and farther west near Geertruidenberg. Another enemy party crossed the Maas in eastern Holland just north of Roermond. All attacks were beaten back.

STIMSON SAYS IT IS TOO EARLY TO ASSESS BLAME

necessary to deeper penetration. The enemy soon must endeavor to do this, he said, because "time is now working against" him.

"War is not an easy game to play and you can't always win every battle," he said, "but I am confident that we are winning and that time will reveal that this German throw of the dice will have disastrous consequences for him."

Stimson said the Nazis, using two panzer armies and elements of the German Seventh Army, had penetrated some 50 miles westward. So long as any German column continues to advance, he warned, it will "not be appropriate to say that the enemy has been contained or that the danger is over."

Referring to the latest news from the Western front, Stimson said American troops on the southern flank have smashed forward and that the German-controlled corridor had been narrowed to 20 miles. The German army, he said, has taken some hard blows, suffering many casualties in this offensive.

"Several of the U. S. Casualties. As an example, Stimson said, German tank prisoner in one sector told of two panzer regiments in their area which suffered casualties of more than 50 per cent.

Stimson said more than 18,000 Nazi prisoners have been taken during the German offensive, and added: "We, too, are suffering severe casualties."

He spoke of heroism on every sector of the First Army front, mentioning "company cooks and clerks who have fought like tigers at the side of our riflemen," and men who are fighting in the snow and mud and freezing cold.

Accomplishments so far in checking the German advance were credited by Stimson to stubborn ground force resistance and to improved weather which made possible the use of Allied air forces on a large scale.

In the period from Saturday through Wednesday, he reported, 483 German planes were destroyed and 507 armored vehicles and 3177 motor vehicles were destroyed or damaged.

Allied troops in Italy, Stimson said, "are playing an important role in tying up large numbers of German troops, wearing them out and helping to drain German supplies."

100 METAL WORKERS STRIKE OVER FIRING OF FURNACE MAN

About 100 employees of the Federated Metals Division of the American Smelting & Refining Co., 4041 Park avenue, refused to engage in war production, struck today in protest against discharge of a furnace man.

A company spokesman said that the employees, all members of the AFL Federal Labor Union, refused to submit the matter as a grievance. He said the furnace man was discharged last night for negligence.

REDS SMASH NAZI LINES IN BATTLE INSIDE BUDAPEST

Germans Being Pressed Into Eastern Part of City—New Gains Made in Slovakia.

LONDON, Dec. 28 (AP).—The broadcast Russian communiqué announced tonight that the east bank of the Hron (Garam) River in Slovakia had been cleared of the Germans. The Hron is one of the main water barriers in the Soviet march on Bratislava and Vienna.

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, Dec. 28 (AP).—A doomed German garrison reeled backwards in the smoke-filled streets of western Budapest today but clung with suicidal resistance to positions in the eastern sector of the capital.

(A Berlin broadcast said the Nazi garrison in Budapest "has taken up positions on an inner defense ring of the capital" after several Russian penetrations of the German-Hungarian lines. "The Russians are now attacking from the southeast, northeast and west," the broadcast said.)

The Germans and Hungarians were reported to have lost the use of one of two remaining airports for evacuation of troops as Soviet forces smashed toward the heart of the once beautiful city. With enemy forces driving past the city, the Russian troops were able to operate only at night from this last field, near Pest, and the casualties were reported great.

Enemy forces split in two. Russian troops of Marshal Fiodor Tolbukhin's Second Ukrainian Army pushed across the eastern arm of the Danube north of Budapest yesterday, splitting the enemy forces and driving past them into the mountainous, forested area in the Danube's big bend. The rest were pressed back into Buda on the west side of the river, where Soviet units engaged them in house-to-house fighting.

There was no definite word of the relative sizes of the split forces west of the Danube, but the total number of Germans and Hungarians defending Budapest was originally estimated at about 100,000 men.

The crossing of the river, which resulted in the capture of Szentendrei Island and a junction of Red forces on the west bank, cost the Germans and Hungarians 3000 killed, the Soviet command announced. Other Red Army troops stormed into Buda from the west and south in numerous new penetrations of the suburban area.

The Russians overran four suburbs on the eastern bank of the Danube and two on the western side.

Gains Along Vienna Railway.

Tolbukhin's forces hammered out new gains northwest of the capital along the Budapest-Vienna railroad and captured several localities in the Danube bend.

Soviet forces captured eight places east of Polysag in the drive on the Czechoslovak-Hungarian border rail junction of Looson. More than 3500 prisoners were taken in the fighting along the Czechoslovakian fronts Tuesday, it was announced.

The Russians reported the Germans were employing 10,000 civilian workers to fortify the Austrian frontier. They said the entire faculty and student body of the University of Vienna were among the workers, and additional helpers were arriving in large numbers from Moravia and western Austria.

1700 BIG BOMBERS POUND RAIL LINES, SHOPS IN REICH

Weather Halts Air Blows in Battle Zone — 2000 Nazi Vehicles Wrecked Yesterday.

LONDON, Dec. 28 (AP).—Seventeen hundred heavy bombers pounded 11 rail targets in Western Germany today despite bad weather which curtailed close air support for American ground forces.

Five hundred British bombers struck just before dawn, aiming their bomb load of about 2800 tons on ground flares planted by pathfinder planes at Opladen, 12 miles north of Cologne.

Twelve hundred United States Eighth Air Force heavies, also based in Britain, bombed the other targets by instruments through dense clouds. They were escorted by 700 United States fighters which encountered no opposition from German planes. The British escort, likewise, had no opposition in the air.

The 4000-ton bomb load of the American force fell on 10 rail yards and bridges and on junction points between the German salient in Belgium and the Rhine. The rail yards at Opladen, where the Germans have been trying to repair damaged military rolling stock.

Italian-based United States Fifteenth Air Force heavy bombers struck at oil storage centers and rail yards at Regensburg in southern Germany, and Liberators attacked oil refineries in Czechoslovakia.

The United States Twelfth Air Force struck heavily against German concentrations in tactical support of ground troops on the Italian fronts and at communications in northern Italy.

Official accounts said almost 2000 pieces of German rail and road transport were demolished yesterday and 90 German fighters were shot down by some 4000 Allied bombers and fighters which took the air.

Allied losses were five bombers and 23 fighters.

The Tactical Air Force in Italy, enjoying the best stretch of weather in weeks, flew 1800 sorties against the enemy's battlefield strong points and rear area communications yesterday.

BELOIAN REIST CONDEMNED IN ABSENCE TO BE SHOT

BRUSSELS, Dec. 28 (AP).—Leon DeGrelle, chief of the now outlawed Belgian Reist (Fascist) movement, has been condemned in absence to be shot to death.

The Brussels Court of Collaborators and Traitors pronounced the judgment yesterday by default. DeGrelle has been in the hands of the Germans since before they left Belgium.

And steadily the troops knocked out German antitank guns, cleared houses and fought toward their comrades in the city.

Great as is the courage of that force within the city, they almost were sacrificed for naught. When they went in, they knew how serious the situation was. On them—almost—rested the success or failure of the city.

Relief Unit Cleared Woods of Nazis Gun by Gun in Drive on Bastogne

Rescuers Advanced Against Steady Bullet, Shell Fire, Rebuilt Bridges in 6-Day Push.

WITH AMERICAN ARMIES

Dec. 27 (Delayed).—Several thousand of America's most gallant soldiers are joyous in the city of Bastogne tonight.

It is 9 o'clock and a powerful force of tanks and infantry has just broken into the city from the south—to save the men who for eight days have been surrounded by the Germans and shut off from supplies except by air.

For six days this relief force has been battering up from the south, harassed by small-arms and antitank fire, forced to rebuild bridges for armor and clear the enemy from dozens of small towns and dense wooded areas.

The situation grew desperate two days before Christmas, when fog stopped the planes and the encircled men ran low on supplies. But they never quit fighting. No story surpasses theirs in courage against the greatest odds. Tonight Bastogne's defenders are shut off no longer.

I watched our powerful tank and infantry units hammering steadily northward this afternoon to relieve the gallant men inside the battered city.

I stood on a hill and watched dozens of big American transport planes glide low over Bastogne and drop precious ammunition and rations. Over them, our fighters encircled constantly.

German antiaircraft bursts were few because to the northwest American bombers came in and the Germans had to fight them off, letting our unarmed transports drop supplies.

During the day the besieged Americans beat off three strong counterattacks and knocked out 27 more tanks. During the afternoon relief units cleared the Germans out of three villages and watched a fourth, burst into flames.

A convoy of tough, active armored unit leaders stood together in the snow studying the attack today. Their command post was a half-track vehicle, their way in the valley a kilometer forward.

From the front messages rolled in: "We've cleared the village, what next? We're through the woods; it's full of dead jerries. We're waiting for orders; we need a few tanks to clear out the woods at X—20 prisoners on the way back, air X—we've just captured six nebelwerfers (a six-barreled rocket type gun): Want to come and see them?"

And steadily the troops knocked out German antitank guns, cleared houses and fought toward their comrades in the city.

Great as is the courage of that force within the city, they almost were sacrificed for naught. When they went in, they knew how serious the situation was. On them—almost—rested the success or failure of the city.

F. D. R.'S TEXT: WARD'S RECORD ONE OF TROUBLE

the war, in reckless disregard of the Government's efforts to maintain harmony between management and labor. Its record of labor relations has been a record of continuous trouble.

Twice the Government has had to seize properties of Montgomery Ward as a result of Mr. Avery's defiant attitude, once in Chicago and once in Springfield, Ill., where the Hummer Manufacturing Co., a Montgomery Ward division, has been operated by the War Department since last May.

For more than a year the company has refused to accept decisions involving workers in 10 of its retail stores. Four of these stores are in the Detroit area, the very heart of war production from the viewpoint of urgency. A strike in progress in these four stores, and strikes are threatened in other cities where the company's stores are located. There is a distinct threat that workers in some of our most critical war plants may join the strike in support of the Montgomery Ward employees if the Government fails to act. We are not going to let this happen.

Strikes Now Cannot Be Condoned.

Strikes in wartime cannot be condoned, whether they are strikes by workers against their employers or strikes by employers against their government. All of our energies are engrossed in fighting a war on the military battlefronts. We have no time to spare for a war on the industrial battlefronts. It is up to us to uphold and strengthen our machinery for settling disputes without interruptions of production. We cannot do this in a total war if we permit defiance to go unchallenged.

The findings submitted to me by the War Labor Board were unanimous in adopting the Board including the representatives of industry.

We cannot allow Montgomery Ward & Co. to set aside the wartime policies of the United States Government just because Mr. Sewell Avery does not approve of the Government's procedure for handling labor disputes. Montgomery Ward & Co., like every other corporation and every labor union in this country, has a responsibility to our fighting men. That responsibility is to see that nothing interferes with the continuity of our war production. It is because Montgomery Ward & Co. has failed to assume this obligation that I have been forced to sign an executive order directing the Secretary of War to take over and operate certain properties of Montgomery Ward & Co.

Well, here's his chance.

D.F.C. POSTHUMOUSLY TO NURSE

ROME, Dec. 28 (AP).—The distinguished Flying Cross was awarded posthumously today to Lt. Aleda E. Lutz, 29 years old, American air evacuation nurse killed Nov. 1 when the C-47 hospital plane in which she was attending 15 patients crashed near Lyon, France.

She had flown 196 evacuation missions for a total of 814 hours and landed more than 3500 patients. Her home was at Fradland, Mich. She arrived in North Africa in February, 1943, with the 802d Evacuation Squadron and had flown wounded from Tunisia, Sicily and Italy, including takeoffs from the Anzio beachhead.

COTE BRILLIANTE SCHOOL USE BY NEGROES ARGUED

Groups Appear Before Board of Education Committee — No Decision on Reopening.

Residents of the area normally served by Cote Brillante School, 2616 Cora avenue, appeared before the Instruction Committee of the Board of Education last night to discuss the question of whether the school, closed since last September, should be reopened for Negroes.

Following the meeting Dr. Herbert O. Winterer, chairman of the committee, said the matter would be brought before the board and that it was unlikely the school would be opened for the second semester beginning the end of January.

Spokesmen for the Negro residents of the neighborhood represented, for the most part, the Federated Block Units, an organization interested in better living conditions. They were introduced by John T. Clark, executive secretary of the Urban League and president of the block unit organization.

Tells of Congested Condition.

F. C. Wilson, chairman of a block unit committee which has been studying the Cote Brillante situation, described the congested conditions in such Negro schools as Marshall, Simmons, Cole, Riddick and West Belle, and said conversion of Cote Brillante School would help relieve the congestion. "We found teachers handling as many as 48 to 50 children," he said, "and in one or two schools there were instances of teachers handling as many as 60. Room plans were changed so there was no play space and no space for lunch. One teacher said this resulted in bedlam on rainy days."

Lafayette F. Ford, in a brief plea for tolerance, said: "We call upon you to give the Negro children room in which to live and breathe." Henry Carter asserted the reason for the movement of the Negroes from east of Grand boulevard to west of Grand was largely because houses to the east are being condemned and torn down. Mrs. Audia H. Roberts described the unhealthy conditions in which she said many Negro children lived, and added that Negroes making higher wage time wages want to improve themselves.

Summing up, Clark said: "The Negro meets resistance wherever he moves. There is no room in congestion in every Negro school and we have found that in less than a year there has been about a 51 per cent increase in Negro children in the area west of Taylor avenue."

He added there were about 800 Negro children who could attend Cote Brillante, that the areas south and east of the school were solidly Negro and that Negroes were moving north and west.

Most of those who spoke in opposition to the change were representatives of the Marcus Avenue Improvement Association, which was headed by Emil Koob, a baker and president of the group. Koob offered the committee figures gathered by the association, which showed that about 100 Negro children would attend Cote Brillante if it were made available to them.

The Rev. John Oppiger, pastor of the Emmanuel Lutheran Church, who said he spoke as an adviser to the association, said: "On the one hand there is a minority group seeking the advancement of its youth, and on the other a minority which feels it is being called upon to carry the entire burden of this change. The decline in property values would embarrass them."

Tells of Church Repairs.

Albert F. Hake, representing the Cote Brillante Presbyterian Church, said the church had evidenced its faith in the stability of the neighborhood by spending $20,000 on repairs recently. The Rev. Dr. Alfred L. Grewe, pastor of Faith Lutheran Church, suggested the board should consider first the number of white and Negro children in the community. John A. Wolfgram and F. J. Flosscher spoke from the point of view of property owners.

Winterer said he visited the neighborhood yesterday afternoon and would return in an effort to satisfy himself as to prevailing conditions.

Superintendent of Instruction Philip J. Hickey told a reporter the school, operated for several years as a branch high school, had about 350 pupils when it was closed pending solution of the problem. It will accommodate about 1000, he added. The Negroes want it utilized as an elementary school.

40 PCT. REDUCTION IN CIVILIAN USE OF LEAD ORDERED

Slash Will Affect Production of Batteries, Paint, Gasoline — Copper Cut in Prospect.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28 (AP).—Shortages of two important war metals, copper and lead, threatened today to cause further civilian belt-tightening in 1945.

Because of the rising Army demands for bullets and artillery shells, the Office of Civilian Requirements may be called upon to give back half of the tonnage of copper brass mill products allotted to it for the manufacture of civilian goods next quarter, WPB officials said.

A 40 per cent cut in civilian use of lead, required in a War Production Board order announced last night, was explained as necessary to protect the Government stockpile of that metal, which has dwindled to less than one month's wartime consumption.

The lead curtailment will affect storage batteries, paint, tetraethyl for civilian gasoline, and other important items. The copper deficit is expected to hit hooks, carves, fasteners, and to a severe degree—civilian shotgun shells and cartridges used by farmers and ranchers to protect livestock and crops.

Aside from copper and lead, however, the metal situation was said to be the "easiest supply situation" in two years.

Steel supplies were reported "fairly well balanced" with prospective demand, and aluminum "relatively easy." Only about half the country's plant capacity for producing ingot aluminum is being used.

The steel plate supply was considerably eased by a big drop in Maritime commission requirements for the January-February-March quarter.

The carbon steel allotment to the Office of Civilian Requirements, for consumer goods manufacture and other civilian activities, has been cut rather deeply—from 228,000 tons this quarter to 163,800 tons next quarter.

In addition, 250,000 tons have been allotted for civilian goods manufactured under the "spot" authorization plan, where individual plants may apply to make civilian items if they can prove they have machinery and labor not needed for war work.

WPB officials said, however, they did not think half the tonnage would be used, because of limitations placed on the spot program to conserve manpower.

Many Minor Accidents on Streets — Children Coast Into Autos.

Traffic conditions were improved today, but some streets in St. Louis and highways throughout the State remained icy, and Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren warned that freezing rain or snow tonight might make conditions extremely hazardous again.

Operations of street cars, local buses, trains and planes were back to normal today, but intercity bus lines reported some weather delays, and trips to Memphis and Tulsa were canceled.

The Express Highway was closed from 9 a. m. to 3:15 p. m. yesterday. Police closed the highway again at 9:42 p. m., but reopened it at 3:32 a. m. today.

Many minor traffic accidents on city streets were reported, including several cases of children on sleds coasting into automobiles.

Mrs. Mary Hoover, 80 years old, 3749 South Broadway, was seriously injured in a fall on the ice in the 3700 block of South Jefferson.

Moderate smoke hung over the city from 9 to 10 a. m. The wind was from the northeast, and much of the smoke was blown over from the East Side, Wahlgren reported.

There have been three other moderate and two heavy falls this month.

$2,168,824 PAID OUT BY TVA IN YEAR IN LIEU OF TAXES

Compensation to 6 States and 126 Counties for Loss of Revenue on Property Taken Over by Project.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 28.—The payment made by the Tennessee Valley Authority in 1944 to states and counties in lieu of taxes was $2,168,824.

This figure was given in a special report filed today with Congress by TVA, under provisions of the TVA Act. It represents a percentage of TVA's gross receipts from the sale of electric power, the proportion being determined by a schedule set out in an amendment added to the TVA Act in 1940.

The report recommended continuation of this method of compensating states and local political subdivisions which have had land and other property taken from their tax rolls through the acquisition of such property by TVA, a Federal agency. Six states and 126 counties participated in distribution of the TVA payment, which was described by the report as being $790,311 in excess of the total of all ad valorem taxes formerly assessed against the properties rendered tax exempt by TVA acquisition.

Public schools received the largest share of the TVA payments to counties, the report said.

The 1940 amendment fixed the 1941 payment at 10 per cent of gross receipts from power sales, but provided for a gradual reduction so that in 1949 and thereafter the payment would be only 5 per cent of gross receipts.

Municipalities and co-operatives which distribute TVA power also make payments in lieu of taxes to local political subdivisions. For the fiscal year 1945 these payments by 83 municipal systems and 48 co-operatives aggregated $1,957,514, or approximately 5.6 per cent of the gross sales of these distributing systems. The report describes this sum as being $400,000 greater than the total ad valorem taxes formerly assessed by these local governments against the utility properties taken over by the tax-exempt distributing agencies.

The report concludes: "The continuation of payments in lieu of taxes by TVA is recommended. Such payments are a reasonable cost of the power program and an equitable contribution to the support of state and local government in the area. Payments under the present provisions have protected local governments against loss in tax revenues anticipated prior to the enactment of the 1940 amendment. The payments and payment provisions have won widespread approval in the area."

More Fathers to Be Drafted — Recheck of Job Deferrals.

For the first time since selective service began, all available 1-A registrants in St. Louis will be called up to meet the city's January quota, Col. J. G. Christy, assistant State Director of Selective Service, announced today.

The increased quota to provide replacements for the armed forces will make it necessary to draft more fathers in January than in any month since last May, Col. Christy added.

Scarcity of eligible younger registrants will result in concentration on older men. A recheck of registrants given occupational deferments will be made, and those found to have left essential jobs will be recalled.

The national draft quota, as previously announced, has been increased from 60,000 to 80,000 a month. Unofficial estimates indicate the increase for Missouri under the new national quota will be 500 to 1,000 men monthly.

SOLDIER'S WIFE AND MAN CHARGED WITH LEWD CONDUCT

A warrant charging lewd and lascivious conduct was issued today by the Prosecuting Attorney against Marvin Woodrow Wilson, a laborer, and Mrs. Itell McCormick, wife of a soldier, who were arrested Monday in a rooming house at 1928A South Broadway.

The arrest followed a complaint by Mrs. Elizabeth Wilson, 1317 Hickory street, of non-support of herself and three children against Wilson, her husband. A warrant against him also was issued today on this complaint.

Mrs. McCormick, 20 years old, was held at the matrons' room at Central District with a four-month-old boy who, police said, was born to her and Wilson at Sikeston, Mo. Mrs. McCormick is also the mother of a three-year-old daughter staying with friends in St. Louis. Police quoted Mrs. McCormick as saying she had last seen her husband, Henry McCormick, two years ago. He was recently known to have been at an Army post in Wisconsin. Mrs. McCormick received $80 monthly from the Government for support of herself and her daughter as a soldier's dependents, police said.

SIX ESCAPE FROM BURNING EAST ST. LOUIS APARTMENT

Five persons and a six-month-old baby escaped safely from second-floor apartments when fire early today swept a two-story building at 812 Missouri avenue, East St. Louis, in which the J. E. Gram Refrigeration Co. occupies the first floor. Damage was estimated at $7500.

Firemen said the blaze started in the rear of the refrigeration company, apparently from a defective flue, and spread to the rear of the second floor.

John Shaner, whose family occupies one of the apartments, discovered the flames and aroused other tenants. He carried his baby from the building.

FLYERS SMASH JAP EFFORT TO SHELL MINDORO FROM SEA

Yank Airmen, PT Boats Sink Three Destroyers, Damage Battleship and Cruiser in Night Fight.

By SPENCER DAVIS
BOMB WING HEADQUARTERS, MINDORO, Philippines, Dec. 28 (AP).—The enemy attempt to bombard American installations at Mindoro with a formidable surface battle force can be added to the long list of failures of the Japanese Navy suffered in the Philippines campaign.

Although an enemy battleship of the Kagi class, a heavy cruiser and six destroyers stood off Mindoro's western coastline at what might be considered a safe distance to lob star shells and a few five-inch shells toward the airfields, they were unable to withstand the fury of an almost continuous air assault.

(Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported in a communiqué that three of the enemy destroyers were sunk, and the battleship and cruiser were damaged in the action. He said the enemy shelling was "fruitless and inaccurate.")

Arriving at one of Mindoro's airstrips a few hours after the Japanese attack, this correspondent was not able to find a single shell crater marring the field. There were no burning structures or rubble heaps of smoking aircraft.

There were two grass fires and one fire off San Jose was still smoking, and this appeared to be the extent of the damage.

When the Japanese ships came within airplane striking range at dusk, they were spotted by a Navy Liberator search plane piloted by Lt. P. F. Stevens of Joplin, Mo., who reported to bomb wing headquarters, Mindoro, that the enemy force was heading toward Mindoro at 28 knots.

U. S. Airfield Raided.
Brig. Gen. Donald F. Hutchinson, chief of staff of the Fifth Air Force, ordered all available planes fueled and loaded with bombs, but enemy fighters swept over San Jose's airfields for bombing and strafing runs before preparations were completed.

Thunderbolts, Lightnings, Mitchells and Black Widow night fighters had to take off whether or not they had bombs snugged under their wings.

Pilots scrambled from dust-obscured new fields while the Jap bombs were still falling.

It was growing dark and to help the takeoffs the fields were completely lighted.

As fighter after fighter cleared the runways and headed for the Japanese, the first star shells broke overhead, fired by the enemy in an apparent effort to set the range for the shelling to come.

But the heavy, sustained bombardment never did start and the answer seemed to lie in the violence of the attacking American planes.

Lt. Stevens returned to Mindoro, loaded up with 500-pound bombs and streaked back to a point where he had last seen the enemy. Jap Battleship Hit.

He located the battleship and dropped the bombload in a low level attack. No. 3 and No. 4 bombs hit squarely.

Although his bombs were expended, Stevens stayed with the enemy reporting its course.

A flight of Mitchell bombers, part of a reconnaissance unit, led by Maj. Howell C. Wise of Beverly Hills, Cal., struck the lead destroyer. Wise saw his bombs explode amidships and set the enemy ship afire. Other Mitchells dove on the second destroyer, hitting it repeatedly. It was seen to explode violently three times.

Patrol-torpedo boats likewise had responded and they closed with the heavy cruiser for a torpedo run and secured a possible hit but were called back to avoid confusion. In the moonlight several PT boats inadvertently suffered an attack from our own aircraft.

The Japanese destroyers had approached closest to shore as the enemy force swept down from the north to the south of Mindoro. As the air attack gained in fury, the battleship and cruiser headed into Sulu Sea and made an 180-degree turn to the north.

The destroyers opened fire with the five-inch guns and from later investigation it appeared they fired less than 50 rounds. Then they rejoined the rest of the task force while Thunderbolts and Lightnings nagged them in continuous bombing and strafing runs.

One pilot said he thought he was approaching a destroyer and opened up at him with his 20-mm. cannons blazing, "but then he opened up on me and I found out he was a battleship. Wow!"

Second Lt. Charles A. Gregg, of West Virginia, piloting a Thunderbolt, made two bombing runs and returned to the field to plead for 1000 pounds for a third attack. His request was denied and he sat on the field the rest of the night.

Maj. Carroll C. Smith of Monterey, Cal., commanding a newly arrived night fighter unit, had an aerial view of the entire attack as he directed the fighters to the targets.

He said: "Sam Goldwyn would have paid a million dollars for that show."

Enemy Flees North.
At approximately 1:30 this morning, Manila time, the Japanese force withdrew and when last seen was retiring north toward the China Sea. Today, bomb-laden Lightning fighters scoured the Sulu Sea for the remnants of the taskforce.

There was no evidence that the Japanese had made any sort of a landing—if that had been their intent.

Gen. Hutchinson said the Japanese surface force was under attack from 7 p. m. until almost 11:30 p. m., Manila time.

"The almost continuous air attack broke up a sizable Japanese threat," the General said. "They may have been able to get a few troops ashore who disappeared into the undergrowth but reconnaissance has given no evidence of this and certainly no supplies were landed to support them. It was a highly successful action for us."

827 More Japs Killed on Leyte; Enemy Bases Bombed.

GERMANS DRIVE YANKS BACK IN WESTERN ITALY

Nazis Continue Attacks Along Serchio Valley— Foe Repulsed Below Bologna.

ROME, Dec. 28 (AP).—German forces are continuing their counterattack in the Serchio Valley sector on the western flank of the Italian front and Fifth Army troops have made further withdrawals in that area, Allied headquarters announced today.

The town of Barga, captured a month ago by the Fifth Army, was enveloped in the German counter-assault that struck out on a six-mile front on each side of the Serchio.

The extent of the American withdrawal was not disclosed, but it is known that the Yanks had been at least a mile above Barga two weeks ago.

Barga is a mile and a half east of the river and about 15 miles north of the city of Lucca, capital of Lucca Province.

The Nazi drive through the valley flatlands and the flanking mountains was supported by light artillery.

Meanwhile, Eighth Army troops in the Adriatic sector fanned out along the east bank of the Senio River and slashed into fortified German positions at Alfonsine, nine miles northwest of Ravenna.

Allied patrols ran into heavy German mortar fire north of Bagnacavallo. South of that town enemy strong points were being mopped up all the way to captured Faenza, on the Bologna-Rimini highway.

Allied positions below Monte Sole, 12 miles south of Bologna, underwent several attacks, but the Germans were repulsed. Heavy enemy guns fired on Allied positions at Monte Grande, due south of Bologna.

Premier Ivanoe Bonomi, asserting the German western front offensive clearly shows increased effort is necessary for "common victory," proposed today that more than six Italian divisions be sent against the Germans in Italy, and that they fight on one sector as a national unit.

To a Fresh Egg.

GENESEO, Ill.—Last October George Patorie wrote his name and address on an egg he was candling at a produce company. He found out where the egg went when he got a V-mail message from Capt. E. H. Gravenhorst, with a depot repair squadron in Italy.

"As we seldom get fresh eggs, it sure was a treat," the Captain wrote.

Influenza Epidemic in Reich. LONDON, Dec. 28 (AP).—The Brussels radio said today an influenza epidemic had broken out in Germany. The broadcast said the situation was particularly serious in the southern sections of the Reich and there have been many deaths in Munich.

POLICEMAN'S SHOTS SCARE OFF 2 WHO ABANDON WHISKY LOOT

Two Negroes who were interrupted today while carrying whisky from a tavern they had broken into at 2300 Chestnut street abandoned their loot and a stolen automobile after a chase in which five shots were fired by a policeman.

Sgt. Leonard Singer of the Central District said at 3:50 a. m. he saw the two carrying whisky from a side door of the tavern and taking it to the automobile. When they saw him they drove away. He attempted to stop them by stepping into the street but they swerved the automobile and tried to hit him. He drew his revolver and fired five shots.

Sgt. Singer commandeered a taxicab and started after the robbers, he said, but found the automobile abandoned at Eighth and Singleton streets. There were four bullet holes in the left side. In the car were 45 bottles of whisky, valued at $75, and other items taken from the tavern.

NAZI WESTERN DRIVE FLOORED TO DISASTER, RUSSIAN SAYS

MOSCOW, Dec. 28 (AP)—A Red Army military commentator says the Germans' strategy in their Western Front offensive violated the elementary requirements of military science.

"That a decisive victory can be achieved only by annihilating or defeating the strongest enemy grouping is axiomatic," asserted Lt. Col. V. Kravtsov in today's Moscow News. "The German command resorted to striking consecutive blows at two points with the aim of encirclement. The tactical error was that the Allied troop concentration was lowest.

"To strike at a weak spot can be effective only when development of this blow brings the attacking force in contact with the main enemy force; otherwise, success may be no more than a tactical error and thus may lead to a major catastrophe. The Germans not only failed at complete encirclement but left a claw of their

CHAPLIN NOT FATHER OF BABY, SAY DOCTORS

Two Testify Blood of Parent of Child Would Be of Different Type.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 28 (AP).—A third physician is on call to testify tomorrow that Charlie Chaplin is not the father of Joan Berry's baby.

Two told a jury yesterday that her contention that the 35-year-old comedian begot her daughter was, on the basis of blood tests they made, "impossible."

Dr. Roy W. Hammack and Newton Evans related that they drew samples of Miss Berry's, Chaplin's and the baby's blood last Feb. 18 and subjected them to microscope and test-tube examinations.

As anyone who has given or received a transfusion may know, the doctors want on there are four blood types or groups.

Chaplin's, they said, is in group O, that of his 24-year-old former drama pupil is in group A, and 14-month-old Carol Ann's is in group B.

Only a man having blood in group B or AB, said the doctors, could be the father.

The third physician who helped in the blood tests, Dr. V. L. Andrews, has been ill in a hospital, Chaplin's lawyer told the court yesterday, so the trial was postponed until tomorrow, when the attorney said Dr. Andrews is expected to be able to be present.

The three physicians issued a report after making the tests, announcing the conclusion that Chaplin could not be the father. Joseph Scott, representing Miss Berry, asked Dr. Hammack on cross-examination whether in his opinion results of the tests were infallible.

"That's right," said the physician. "Don't doctors differ?" "I've never encountered any difference of opinion on blood grouping," he said that as an additional check the tests were repeated after being once made.

WOMAN IS GIVING
DOLLS TO CHILDREN
SANTA OVERLOOKED

Mrs. Emilene Schwarz, who has offered to give a doll to any child overlooked by Santa Claus, had filled orders today for four, and said the offer was still open. Mrs. Schwarz lives on a farm near Manchester, St. Louis County, and reconditions dolls as a profit-making sideline.

Her offer of free dolls to disappointed children was made Sunday in a want ad in the Post-Dispatch. First request was from a little girl from a neighboring farm, who called in person. Another came in a letter from two sisters, 9 and 12 years old, in a family of eight children, who said their mother was ill "and couldn't afford to buy us a doll."

The idea of giving dolls to children of needy families came to Mrs. Schwarz after she saw an elderly couple at a department store, counting their coins and evidently unable to afford a modestly-priced doll they were examining.

"I knew that meant some little girl who wanted a doll wasn't going to get one, and I decided to do something about such children," she said.

Children who did not receive a Christmas doll may receive one by writing Mrs. Schwarz on Route 1, Valley Park.

"If I get more requests than I can fill," she said, "I'll make some more dolls."

35 From St. Louis—No Staff Uniforms Planned Because of Shortages.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 28.—Appointment of 112 honorary colonels to serve on the Governor's personal staff was announced last night by Gov.-elect Phil M. Donnelly of Lebanon, to become effective with his inauguration on Jan. 8. These are Donnelly's first appointments.

The list is not complete, Donnelly said, as it does not include honorary colonels to be named from his home town of Lebanon. When it assembles for the 1945 inaugural ceremony, the staff of honorary colonels will not be so colorful as in former years because Donnelly's colonels will not wear uniforms. The decision not to have staff uniforms was due to material and tailoring shortages, it was said. At former inaugurations and other State occasions in which the staff assembled, the bright uniforms of the colonels added a gay touch.

Instead of staff uniforms, the colonels will wear civilian clothing, with a distinguishing brassard or arm band and a badge.

The colonels perform no military functions. The appointees usually are close personal friends of the Governor, or were strong supporters in his election campaign.

St. Louis Heads List.

St. Louis heads the list numerically, with 35 appointees, among them Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic National Committee; J. J. Dwyer, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, and Anthony A. Buford, influential Democratic politician and lobbyist.

Other St. Louisans are Paul V. Browne, Emmett T. Carter, James E. Crowe, Otto J. Dickmann, Thomas L. Farrington, John J. Griffin, A. B. Lansing, J. M. Leahy, Leo Lyng, Waldo C. Mayfield, John J. Nangle, Roland F. O'Brien, M. G. Roberts, Tom K. Smith, Frank J. Obermeier, Myles Dyer, William H. Bartley, Joseph Hauser, William P. Carleton, M. L. Meyers, Morris Mandel, Joseph P. White, Frederick Riesmeyer, Fred M. Switzer Jr., Richard C. Muckerman, Ray F. McCarthy, Joseph A. Boss, Earl H. Palmer, E. H. Mahler, Fred Z. Salomon, Charles Osterlog and Anton Niemeyer.

Inaugural Arrangements.

Arrangements for the inaugural ceremony, at noon on Jan. 8, in the rotunda of the Capitol here, are being completed by the Adjutant General's department. An inaugural parade, with State troops, several bands, military schools, civic, political and other groups participating, will precede the inauguration and delivery of Donnelly's message to the 1945 Legislature.

The program for the afternoon and evening of Jan. 8 will include receptions at the executive mansion for the honorary colonels and their wives, receptions at the Capitol for legislators and for the public, and the inaugural ball in the Capitol.

Quinine Output to Be Cut.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28 (AP).—Military requirements for quinine, the chemical substitute for quinine, have been sharply reduced, the War Production Board reported yesterday. In view of the smaller military demands, production of quinine next year will be less than 50 per cent of the 1944 output. Quinine, used for the treatment of malaria, no longer will be under allocation.

DRIVER ACCUSED OF LEAVING THE SCENE OF AN ACCIDENT

A 39-year-old mechanic was arrested last night and booked for leaving the scene of an accident and making a false report of a law violation after he was identified as the driver of an automobile which struck a parked machine in the 3500 block of South Broadway on Dec. 23.

Stephen Lee, 3618A Texas avenue, saw the accident and gave police a license number which was traced to the mechanic. Following his arrest, Lee identified him as the driver. The mechanic said he visited a number of taverns on Dec. 23, and his automobile was stolen from the 400 block of Lami street while he was in a tavern in that neighborhood.

GIRL, 6, SAVES SISTER, TWO BROTHERS IN FIRE

Edwardsville Soldier's Daughter Follows Mother's Instructions in Rescue.

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

Alice Van Cleve, 8 years old, escaped from her burning home outside of Edwardsville yesterday and then rescued three smaller children of the family because she remembered the instructions her mother had given her on what to do in case of emergency while the children were alone in the house.

Her mother, Mrs. Mary Van Cleve, was in Edwardsville making final arrangements for the family to move to larger quarters when fire started in one corner of the Van Cleve home in a converted garage at 1112 Prickett avenue. Alice, Jerry, 5; Barbara Jean, 2½, and James Eldon Jr., 13 months, were alone.

The children frequently had gone outside, and to prevent it I hooked the door on the outside," Mrs. Van Cleve told a Post-Dispatch reporter. "When I started doing this, I also instructed Alice carefully on what to do. She remembered everything perfectly, and when the fire started she did everything exactly right."

Alice climbed out a window, went to the door and unhooked it. Then she picked up the baby and, calling for help, ran toward the home of a neighbor, Mrs. Harry Bess. Mrs. Bess heard her, took the baby from Alice, and the girl ran back to the blazing building and guided Jerry and Barbara Jean to safety.

"She even remembered to tell the others not to bother about putting on clothing," Mrs. Van Cleve said. "The only thing any of them had on was a nightgown."

Neighbors reached Mrs. Van Cleve at the Red Cross office in Edwardsville, and told her the home was destroyed but all the children were safe. All the family's clothing, Christmas presents and bedding bought in preparation for the move to the house on Ann avenue in Edwardsville were also destroyed. The Red Cross drew on its flood reserve for blankets and enough clothing for the children.

Van Cleve is an army private, and is in a hospital in France recovering from wounds suffered in Germany. He had also been wounded while on maneuvers before going overseas. The family has occupied the converted garage for two years, paying $12 a month to apply on a purchase price. Mrs. Van Cleve decided larger quarters were needed, and made arrangements for a two-room place for which the rent will be $8 a month.

The Red Cross in Edwardsville received numerous offers to help in replacing the possessions lost in the fire. One caller said he would give the family a complete set of bedroom furnishings, including pillows. And at the home of Mrs. Oils Brannan, executive secretary of the Red Cross chapter, was a heap of a dozen gift packages for the children from the Sunday school of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Edwardsville. They were to be delivered on Christmas Eve, but the family was not at home and it was decided to keep them until they had moved.

Mrs. Van Cleve receives an army allowance of $140 a month, on which she supports the family and is paying off some accumulated bills.

JAPS TO MOVE GIFTS TO YANKS IMPRISONED IN CHINA JAN. 4

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 28 (AP).—Japanese Domei news agency said today the steamer Hoshi Maru would sail from Kobe Jan. 4 for China, carrying the first installment of comfort packages for Allied war prisoners and internees. The packages were sent from the United States for war prisoners and internees in Japan, China and southern regions.

On Dec. 22 Domei quoted Sadao Iguchi, spokesman for the Japanese board of information, as saying the Japanese Government already had distributed relief packages to Allied war prisoners and internees in Japan and occupied Korea and Manchuria and that war prisoners in Southern China and the Philippine Islands recently had received the supplies "in the very near future."

The report, intercepted by the Federal Communications Commission, said the Japanese steamer Kakuan Maru brought the packages from Vladivostok recently.

FATHER FLANAGAN PLEA FAILS, 2 YOUTHS TO DIE FOR KILLING

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 28 (AP).—Gov. Thomas L. Bailey declined today to interfere with tomorrow's scheduled execution of Maurice Shinnick of Madison, Wis., and Joseph M. Leemon of Maylene, Ala., 19-year-old former sailors, for the killing of Sheriff Thomas S. Boykin at Waynesboro, Miss.

Shinnick and Leemon, formerly attached to a Pensacola Naval station, were convicted a year ago of the murder of the Wayne County sheriff when he gave them a ride last November. Bailey announced his decision after receiving a personal appeal last night for commutation from Father E. J. Flanagan, founder of Boys Town, who asked for clemency because of the age of the condemned pair.

How to make linens last longer

1. Shorten washing time in your machine. Churning things too long in the washer means added wear.
2. Reduce rubbing by hand to minimum. Friction has an abrasive effect—is extremely hard on fabrics.
3. Whiten safely with Purex! Only Purex is made by the Introl Process, which insures the same uniform bleaching action from every bottle. You can't overbleach when you use Purex according to simple directions. And you avoid wear caused by extra rubbing. Linens come out snowy and last longer.

TRY THE 2-MINUTE PUREX BEAUTY BATH FOR KITCHEN—Banishes many food odors, stains, stickiness. Sweetens sink and drain. Makes porcelain gleam. Deodorizes and disinfects refrigerator and food containers. Brings out color in linoleum. Try it!

ABSENTEEISM CHARGE DENIED BY RAIL MEN

War Shipments Not Being Impeded, Say Terminal Association and Brotherhood.

Representatives of the Terminal Railroad Association and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen today denied allegations of W. F. Kirk of Chicago, western rail director of the Office of Defense Transportation, that shipment of war materials was being impeded by absenteeism among yard service employees in St. Louis, Chicago and Kansas City railroad terminals.

Terminal Railroad Association officials said there had been some shortage of workers about two weeks ago, largely because of illness, but asserted freight now was moving normally.

"We are a little tight because of the general manpower situation now," one official said, "but we are not experiencing any serious delays in freight handling." He said the recent absences of about 25 or 30 men had been caused by sickness.

Most railroad workers, he added, realize the importance of their jobs to the war effort.

E. L. Wheeler, an employee of the Missouri Pacific Railroad and chairman of the St. Louis District Chairman's Association of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, emphatically denied Kirk's statement. He invited ODT officials and others concerned with movement of war materials to check the time of all workers in train and yard service which, he said, compares favorably with employees engaged in other industries. Kirk's assertion was supported by officials of several rail lines in Kansas City. C. K. Bakke, general superintendent there of the Rock Island Lines, reported his company had called in bridgemen and section hands to supplement the freight handling force.

Kirk said "movement of materials to manufacturers of military supplies badly needed on our battle fronts is being retarded in important rail terminals." Railroad officers in the West, he added, had advised him that holiday absenteeism had caused a lag in military transportation.

BASTOGNE YANKS TIED UP MOST OF 5 NAZI DIVISIONS

throughout the siege, told of the heroism of the medics:

"We were pressed for medical supplies. A handful of medic aids did wonderful work there."

Nazis in Yank Uniforms.

The G. I. caught some Germans wearing American uniforms. The Americans made the enemy swap, explaining that they were "reclaiming government property."

"I'll never forget that place," said an American soldier from Mississippi, speaking through a bandage. "I left part of my nose there."

A wounded man from New Jersey said German tanks and artillery had his unit cut off and it was saved by another unit which charged across an open field to divert enemy fire.

A Navajo Indian who stopped a bullet shivered under a stack of Army blankets.

"I'd like to have a real Navajo blanket, it would keep me warm," he said.

Another G. I. from South Alabama lay wounded in a cut-off pocket four days.

"My guys did a swell job. They fought four days without rations. My wound? It's nothing," he said.

These were but a few bits of the heroism shown by the men of various branches of the service who pooled their efforts and ammunition and would not say quits.

Among the wounded it was always the other fellow who did the most.

One encircled unit published its daily newspaper on a duplicating machine with the Christmas edition carrying a "Merry Christmas" at the masthead.

"What's merry about all this, you ask?" said the front page editorial. "We're fighting. It's cold, we aren't home. All true—but what have we accomplished?"

"We have stopped cold everything that had been thrown at us from the north, east, west... how effectively this was done will be written in history, not alone in the history of our glorious units, but in the history of the world."

The pocketed Americans were found plentifully supplied with ammunition and food for the most part. The supplies had been parachuted by planes. The area about Bastogne was dotted with red and yellow cargo parachutes.

Medical Corps Shot Up.

Among the vehicles which entered with the relieving tank column were four ambulances led by a medical corpsman who had made a getaway when his medical company was surrounded, shot up and captured a week ago Monday.

This officer was Capt. Jacob Pearl, Brooklyn, N. Y. He and other medical officers who had remained at Bastogne immediately began organizing a convoy to remove the wounded.

With his four ambulances and others, plus a number of trucks already in Bastogne, the convoy moved out of the liberated town during yesterday afternoon with the first of the wounded. Other ambulances began rolling in later in the day.

"Late on the night of Dec. 18 the Germans surrounded our medical company and poured in machine-gun fire for 15 minutes," said Capt. Pearl. "The place was lit up like a Christmas tree and they couldn't help seeing our Red Crosses."

"After the shooting stopped the Germans sent over an officer who gave us 30 minutes to load up the wounded and go with them. After completing the loading two fellow medics, Capt. John Briner of the Bronx, and Capt. Roy H. Moore, a Tennessean who attended Vanderbilt, and I decamped into the woods. We walked all night and ran into some of our doughboys the next morning."

EAST ST. LOUIS TO INSTALL
NEW STREET SIGNS NEXT WEEK

Installation of 4508 new street markers in East St. Louis will begin late next week, Commissioner of Streets Leo J. Dougherty said yesterday. The signs, which cost $12,500, are steel with four-inch black letters on an orange background of baked enamel. The markers will replace the incomplete set of aluminum signs installed about 10 years ago and will give East St. Louis its first uniform and complete set in many years, Dougherty said. They were ordered more than a year ago but were delivered only recently because of priority restrictions.

E.L.A.S. SNIPER'S BULLET WHISTLES PAST CHURCHILL OUTSIDE ATHENS EMBASSY

ATHENS, Dec. 28 (AP).—PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL, who came here to help solve the armed strife which has rent this country, was fired on by an E.L.A.S. sniper yesterday morning as he stood outside the British embassy.

The bullet whistled by him and struck a young woman 300 yards away. Churchill, dressed in the uniform of an R.A.F. commodore, was about to enter the embassy when the sniper fired. He was with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Ambassador Reginald W. A. Leeper. None was injured although the bullet narrowly missed the group. British headquarters commented this morning that sniping had been fairly continuous across the front entrance of the embassy and that there was no indication the sniper, who was manning a machine gun, aimed especially at Churchill.

CHURCHILL TO URGE KING OF GREECE TO AGREE TO REGENCY

guns will go on firing, the troops will clear the district and we shall establish peace, order and security in Attica.

Churchill said that the alternative to a peaceful settlement was armed force by the British and a possible three-power "international trust" to consider Greek affairs.

Churchill said that when the leaders of the three great powers get together, the Greek question will be "one of the most important items on the agenda."

"We feel our course has been absolutely right," he said. "In August, in consultation with President Roosevelt, we agreed to bring in food and relief and help until things settled down. Premier Stalin was consulted and gave his consent to this course."

Before the vote on the regency yesterday's conference seemed headed for another deadlock. Peace proposals offered by the E. A. M. (national liberation front), of which the E. L. A. S. is the armed auxiliary, were declared unacceptable by members of the Populist party. However, other conference delegates said they would consider the E. L. A. S. terms and present their reply later.

Churchill and the British commander, Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, watched British parachute troops, infantry, tanks and armoured cars begin driving the E. L. A. S. from central Athens today.

Standing on Filopappas (Monument) Hill, they saw stiff fighting waged in the narrow, winding streets of the Irona district northwest of the Acropolis and south of Omonia Square. The E. L. A. S. fought back with mortars, machineguns and grenades and before finally giving in they blew whole buildings into the streets in many places. Teller mines were found sown in the debris.

A dispatch to British headquarters from Epirus said Gen. Napoleon Zervas, commander of an E. D. E. S. army reduced from 10,000 to 5,000 by desertions, was fighting a rear guard action against E. L. A. S. forces and falling back to the neck of the Preveza Peninsula. The attacking E. L. A. S. army was estimated to number from 15,000 to 20,000 men.

U.S. ARMY PAPER URGES ALLIES TO DROP ROWS, UNITE IN FIGHT

LONDON, Dec. 28 (AP).—The United States Army publication Stars and Stripes urged the Allied nations today to close ranks for a united fight against Germany.

The newspaper editorial referred to British troubles in Greece, the controversy over Italian politics, the unrest in Belgium, the Canadian crisis over conscription, the disputes about the Polish-Russian setup, and complaints concerning the international air conference at Chicago.

"Unity and solidarity," the newspaper said, "were strong when the United Nations were militarily weak and the war was in a bad way."

"Well, the bugles of battle are heard again above the bickering. For the holy love of God, let's listen to the dead. Let's learn from the living. Let's join ranks again against the foe and toward the future."

GEN. HILL NAMED NEW CHIEF OF U. S. AIR FORCE IN RUSSIA

MOSCOW, Dec. 28 (AP).—The United States Air Force's command in Russia has a new chief, Brig. Gen. Edward Hill from the Eighth Air Force, and the shuttle service to and from American bases in the Soviet Union has not ended despite reports to that effect published abroad.

Some of the staff at the American bases have left them, but the main body is still there. The shuttle service is not operating presently, it is explained, because present American bases are considered to be too far behind the westward-moving Russian front.

6 CAPTURED YANKS SHOT BY GERMANS IN BASTOGNE AREA

H. Bogley, San Marcus, Tex., told the story.

"We had charge of three four-man litter squads," said Colella, a Sergeant. "We had withdrawn six miles from another village and hid in this church when the Germans came in and began shooting up the town."

"We could hear the Nazi tank commander stopping our trucks and ordering the drivers and helpers out. Then we would hear shots. The next morning we saw the bodies of our men, lying where they had been killed." Besides worrying about their possible death at the hands of SS troops, the medics also had to sweat out an artillery barrage. By morning some of the men—as medics they carried no arms—were considering coming out of the church under a white flag, but they were fearful they might meet the same fate dealt to the helpless truck and jeep drivers. While still debating what to do they saw some doughboys skirmishing in the streets.

"We knew then that part of the town was still in American hands and we found our way out," Colella said.

U. S. Seizes Ward Plants in 7 Cities

order on Avery in the chairman's private office. Avery greeted Gen. Byron pleasantly and shook hands. Gen. Byron conferred for several hours with Avery.

Says Constitution Is Violated.

Avery asserted in a statement that the seizure was "a violation of the Constitution and the Congress, which as the sole lawmaking authority under the Constitution, has given the President no power to seize the non-war business of Montgomery Ward."

He said the issues were before the courts where Ward's "has sought for two years to have them decided" and that "Ward's welcomes the opportunity to present its case to the courts."

U. S. Seeks Injunction.

A staff of Department of Justice experts from Washington filed a petition in United States District Court asking for an injunction to restrain Avery and other company officers from interfering with Government operation of the mail-order concern's facilities in Chicago, Detroit, St. Paul, Minn., Denver, Jamaica, N. Y., Portland, Ore., and San Rafael, Cal. The petition also asked for a declaratory judgment authorizing Government seizure.

The Government complaint said all the seized plants were engaged in "production of articles produced for war." It said Ward's operates 600 retail stores, services 30 million customers, employs 70,000 and that 12,000 employees are involved in the seized plants.

Stuart Hall, counsel for the company, told United States Attorney J. Albert Woll he would accept immediate service of the complaint and be asked for an immediate hearing. The case was assigned to United States District Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

Government's Contentions.

The 32-page complaint named Avery and 15 other company officers as defendants. It contended that persistent refusal of Ward's to accept WLB determinations or to settle labor disputes peacefully had led other parties to refuse to accept WLB decisions and "threatens the maintenance of the no-strike, no-lockout pledge and threatens to break down the procedure for peaceful adjustment of labor disputes."

Hugh E. Cox, assistant to the Solicitor General and head of the Washington legal staff here for the case, said later the suit sought to determine "once and for all" exactly how far the executive branch of the Government can go in straightening out labor-industry disputes.

Montgomery Ward has 20 days in which to answer the complaint. Retroactive Increases Ordered.

In his orders to Secretary of War Stimson, Roosevelt directed the War Department to make retroactive pay increase payments to Ward employees in the seven cities as ordered by the WLB.

The company, long in dispute with WLB, had agreed to the wage increases, but disputed the dates they should be effective. Some go back a year or more.

The company has contended the WLB lacks authority to enforce its directives, which embrace also demands that the firm include maintenance-of-membership clauses in its contracts with the CIO union.

Gen. Byron Issues Statement.

Gen. Byron issued the following statement here in seizing the concern's properties:

"In accordance with the provisions of an executive order, the War Department has taken possession of certain properties of Montgomery Ward & Co., Inc., in Chicago, Detroit, St. Paul, Denver, Jamaica, N. Y., Portland, Ore., and San Rafael, Cal.

These properties will be operated under the terms of the directive orders of the national War Labor Board as specified in the executive order.

"It is the sincere hope of the War Department that it will have the co-operation of every executive and every employee of Montgomery Ward & Co., Inc., in the fulfillment of its mission, and that it will be possible in the near future for the War Department to relinquish control of this enterprise so that those of us who have been assigned to this task may return to our urgent war duties."

Union Pledges Support.

In New York City, Samuel Wolchok, international president of the union, said in a statement issued by union headquarters:

"Now that the Government has seized the plants the union pledges its full support for efficient operation. We expect and demand that the Government operating agents immediately put into compliance the directive orders of the War Labor Board which the company has refused to do."

"We hope that the Government operating agents will as soon as possible give to the workers in the plants a delayed Christmas present, by giving them the retroactive pay to which they are entitled and which amounts to close to two million dollars."

"The union expects the Army to continue to operate the Montgomery Ward units until the present management or some future management is willing and prepared to accept the decisions of the War Labor Board. It seems to me that this places the real responsibility upon the board of directors who represent the owners and who have permitted Sewell Avery to mismanage this company, as he has."

"I call upon the workers in all the units being operated by the Government to give their wholehearted co-operation to the officials placed there by executive order."

The seizure today came as the CIO union began the second strike at Ward's Chicago plants this year. It was the second Army seizure, too, the first coming last April 26 when an aid to the Department of Commerce took over.

On April 27 Avery was carried bodily from his office by two soldiers after the Government contended he refused to co-operate in the seizure procedure.

Do-or-Die Fight Blunts Armored Spearheads, Contains Foe in Vulnerable Funnel-Shaped Bulge—American Strategy Adjusted With Amazing Flexibility.

WITH AMERICAN FORCES IN ARDENNES FOREST, Dec. 28.

BARRING Field Marshal Karl Gerd von Rundstedt's ability to employ his considerable reserves of men and armor, still uncommitted, for a second major counterattack somewhere along the American Ninth and British Second Army fronts to the north, or against our southern armies, there seems no longer much menace in his penetration in our center.

Considerable movement of military traffic along the enemy front in the north may be given an ominous interpretation, but there is nothing in the nature of such a concentration of enemy forces in the region as would warrant real alarm. There is some kind of concentration going on in the Black Forest region opposite Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh Army in the Kaiserslautern area, but this seems much too remote from the penetration in the Bastogne-St. Vith salient sector to afford hopes of proving an effective pincer penetration along classic Wehrmacht lines, even if a break-through could be effected, which is highly unlikely. The fact that our leaders are now thoroughly alert to every possibility, seems unlikely.

Enemy Vulnerable.

Carefully timed, beautifully executed withdrawals by crack American armor and infantry, hurried head on, air, hurried all along advancing spearheads within a few hours after the original breakthrough, have now given the German penetration somewhat the appearance of a wedge, but far from a solid bulge.

Stubbish islands of American resistance like that afforded by American armor and armor in Bastogne, he is aware of his main road and ran liaison between the captain and the division over roads that at frequent intervals were packed with German armor rushing westward. We got the darndest assortment out of that town! Among things which had been left behind was a prisoner-of-war cage containing more than 1000 Jerries. Provost Marshal Maj. James P. Daniel, Mullins, S. C. trucked the whole bunch of them out right across the enemy lines' advance. Individual heroes, some known, some with names which will never be known, are doing their bit. The men who took part in this battle live. There was the unidentified lieutenant who, when the outfit finally was forced to withdraw from the notched-out section, noticed 10 giant 250-mm. cannon which some panicky unit had precipitately abandoned. Though following German armor was already within earshot, he hurriedly sent to the area to resist the German advance, and while most other rear area units were in flight, men of the AA batteries set up impromptu roadblocks defended by their 90-mm. ack-ack guns and stood off the whole weight of the initial German impact until upcoming units arrived.

One of the nameless heroes of these encounters is a Sergeant who, when he discovered that one German Tiger had maneuvered out into the field in a position where the 90-mm. guns could not cover it and from whence it threatened to annihilate the whole roadblock party, hastily borrowed a bazooka from a retreating bazooka man, who was too panicky to use it himself, and crawled up to within 100 feet of the Tiger, from where he got a shot at its side which blew off its tread.

A big part of the reason for the successful stand-off of overwhelming superior German forces by units, which arrived first on the scene to stem Von Rundstedt's advance, is the fury and spirit with which the men have fought. Infantrymen and armored troops, who interposed themselves squarely in front of SS (Elite Guard) spearheads, are men who have fought the SS before and know themselves to be more than a match for it.

One infantry unit for instance, has fought four parts of Europe and has never before since D-day yielded a single inch of ground. Always its role has been that of attacker. Now, due to the exigencies of this fateful situation, it has been forced to yield a little yardage and has taken heavy losses in the bargain.

20 of Company Survive. The cold rage with which these men are fighting probably could not be understood by friends and relatives who knew these youngsters back home. They are humiliated by the loss of ground, aggrieved by the loss of comrades and just plain sore. That helps explain why one company of the main enemy routes at right angles to open a path to a giant supply base belonging to other outfits that had been caught in front of the German drive. These outfits had fled, except for odds and ends such as anti-aircraft crews, military government officials and scattered service troops. The Captain set himself up as "Mayor of Gouvy Station," which was the name of the town, organized the loose ends of personnel whom he found there and fought off all enemy attacks for three days, at the same time keeping open the supply route over which the vehicles of his light tank company, including the tanks themselves, acted as supply trucks to convey desperately needed material that kept his division going until it could be resupplied from more remote bases.

1000 Prisoners Moved.

"There was the oddest assortment of front-line fighting troops in Gouvy Station that anyone ever saw," said Lt. John McLaughlin, 88th Airborne Division, who was himself part of the assortment. One of the Captain's principal aids was Maj. Bill Baird, Lebanon, Tenn. former state senator, who was the town's mayor. He swapped his 45 for an M-1 rifle and ran liaison between the captain and the division over roads that at frequent intervals were packed with German armor rushing westward. We got the darndest assortment out of that town! Among things which had been left behind was a prisoner-of-war cage containing more than 1000 Jerries.

British Troops Fighting in Athens

British General Says Eisenhower Tries to Carry Too Heavy a Load

Allied Leader Should Delegate Authority Instead of Personally Directing Land Fighting, Retired Officer Asserts.

LONDON, Dec. 28 (AP).

SIR DOUGLAS BROWNIRG, a retired Lieutenant General, said today that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is trying to carry too heavy a load in personally directing the land fighting, and suggested that he delegate some of his duties.

Brownrigg was adjutant-general to the British Expeditionary Force in France at the time of his retirement in 1940.

He wrote in the London Evening News that "I have met no one who has any doubt whatever that Gen. Eisenhower is the ideal man as supreme commander, but no one can carry the load he has imposed upon himself."

Brownrigg said that in the North African campaign Eisenhower left the running of the land battle to Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander, but on last Sept. 1, "Eisenhower descended from the supreme perch and took over the personal control of the land fighting without, so far as I am aware, shedding any of his other responsibilities."

Up to that time Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery was Allied ground commander, Air Chief Marshal Trafford Leigh-Mallory was air commander, and Adm. Sir Bertram Ramsay was sea commander.

Since then, Brownrigg said, Leigh-Mallory has been killed and no single commander for combined Allied air forces has been named.

Four days before the Germans started their counteroffensive, Brownrigg said, he talked with Montgomery and the British commander told him "It will require the greatest military skill to beat Von Rundstedt."

Brownrigg suggested that Eisenhower choose his best subordinate to conduct the land battle "or else let him have Alexander once more as his deputy."

32,000 FRENCHMEN HELD AS PRO-GERMAN SUSPECTS

PARIS, Dec. 28 (AP).—Frenchmen being held in internment camps or jails on suspicion of pro-Nazi activities now total 32,000, Minister of Interior Tixier told the Consultative Assembly yesterday. Of the total, 5000 are being held on general charges without any examination yet as to their guilt, he said.

Tixier disclosed that some fifth columnists recently had parachuted into the Paris region, but added that none had done any damage. In more than 2000 cases of suspected espionage, the police have arrested 1800 German and French spies, he said.

Stalin-DeGaulle Accord Viewed As Giving Final Voice on Future Of Reich to Russia and France

Soviet Leader Recognizes Ally's Vital Role in Europe, Where U.S. Failed—French Chief Said to Pass Up Ruhr Basin in Order to Preserve Independence of Policy.

By LELAND STOWE

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS.

THE size and general outlines of future Germany were decided on their essential points in Moscow by Germany's largest two immediate neighbors, the Soviet Union and France. Here are certain important aspects of the Franco-Russian negotiations as summarized to me by one who was in Moscow while De Gaulle was there.

When Stalin discussed Germany's future boundaries with De Gaulle, in effect he did this: He held out a platter whereon lay Hitler's Reich in the position of a roasted turkey. Stalin's attitude amounted to his saying, "help yourselves, gentlemen."

That meant the Soviets did not mind how much the French carved off Germany. But according to my informant, DeGaulle refused to be tempted by the white meat of Germany which the intensive industrialized Ruhr represents. DeGaulle knew perfectly well that for France to take the Ruhr with Russia's blessing would mean France would be utterly reliant upon Soviet support in all matters concerning Germany for a long time in the future.

DeGaulle was thinking of two things—the independence of French policy and settlement with Germany which has the greatest chances of enduring. So DeGaulle did not try to gobble up the white meat of the Ruhr Basin. Apparently the French Government would prefer that the Ruhr be placed under international control—at any rate that Britain share the responsibility for policing Western Germany after the war.

In this fashion, Moscow learned that DeGaulle was unwilling to make his future policies chiefly subordinate to the Soviets. Being realistic above all, Stalin accepted second best—recognition of an independent French policy which nevertheless agreed upon making Germany incapable of waging war throughout the next generation.

France, Russia Take Lead.

But this is the most significant fact of all. The Soviet Union and France are united on a general program to deprive Germany of the ability to wage war for 25 years or more. In French eyes, this is common sense. After all, the Germans have fought on French soil as aggressors three times in 60 years, on Russian soil twice within 28 years. If London and Washington have been slow to expose their plans for a post-war Germany, at least their concern is secondary compared to that of the French and the Russians. Now any Anglo-American proposals will have to be refinements falling within the framework of the Franco-Russian understanding. This was decided at Moscow quite as much as was the

MOSCOW REPORTED READY TO RECOGNIZE LUBLIN GROUP FOR PROVISIONAL RULE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28 (AP).

WORD spread today that Russia is about ready to recognize the Polish Committee of Liberation at Lublin as the provisional government of Poland. Premier Stalin reportedly considers this action necessary to military moves imminent on the Eastern front. Information in diplomatic quarters here now indicates the following as probable, although not certain, developments:

1. The Soviet-backed Lublin committee, which Washington officials do not consider representative of the people of Poland, is expected to declare itself to be a provisional government.

2. Russia would then recognize the committee's claim to provisional status, thereby giving it a diplomatic position in opposition to the position thus far held exclusively by the Polish Government at London.

3. Russia's declaration of recognition would be followed in short order by declarations by various European countries within the Russian sphere of influence, probably starting off with Czechoslovakia.

countries. My French friend says, "The Soviets would never commit the blunders which the British have committed in Belgium and Italy. As for Greece—why doesn't the Churchill government understand that what it is doing now in Athens is merely working for the future communizing of Greece?"

In any event, there is one supreme fact about France which the British and American governments can misjudge only to their long-term chagrin or serious discomfort. There are only two powerful forces in France today—De Gaulle and the Communist Party. This is the common testimony of French observers of long experience. There is no Frenchman in sight who could possibly replace De Gaulle. There is also no political force which could conceivably supplant De Gaulle except the Communist Party. All other French parties are confused, disorganized, and still without a broad base throughout France.

Communist Party Growing.

The French Communists are estimated to have doubled their sizable prewar numbers. In one sense, however, this is an embarrassment for them. They have gained a large new following from

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Some Airmen Shoot Back

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Being service men just returned from combat flying in all theaters of operation, familiar with the significance of the ribbons we wear and what it takes to earn them, we say this in reply to J. W. Thomas, whose letter appeared Dec. 20.

The Air Force flies not only where the enemy has been, but also where they are fighting us with everything at their command. The Air Force is fighting deep in enemy territory long before the ground forces are able to set foot on it. We pride ourselves that through our efforts, not ribbons, the best damn armies in the world find their job just a little bit easier. If such is the case, we are justly rewarded.

It is also fair to remember that when the enemy covers the sky with flak, there are no fox holes in which to take cover. When enemy fighters attack by the hundreds, we fight back in sub-zero weather for hours at a time without letup. Then if your luck runs out and you are wounded, try sweating out four-and-five-hour flights back "home" to a doctor and good medical care. Has Mr. Thomas ever tried it?

We who have just returned from aerial combat flying, for ourselves and for those of the belted Air Force we left behind, who will never get to wear their ribbons they so justly earned and were so proud of, resent Mr. Thomas' public statement degrading their deeds and ours, too.

When Taxation Is Indecent

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
In the lying moments of the late campaign, we heard nothing so absurd as the current proposal of the Republicans to "reduce" taxes—by broadening the base! Below $500?

Any party which presents a genuine plan to reduce taxes will probably elect its candidates next time, but the proposals will have to be worthy and compatible with the public sense of decency and justice. Taxing income below $1000 is indecent.

Dissent From No-Negro Vote

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
The action of Local 825 of the CIO in obstructing an effort to utilize critically needed available labor, apparently in ignorance of the correlation between this need and successful German counterattacks, would indicate that there are those who would deny American Negroes the right to work, even at the cost of denying our soldiers ammunition.

The Government maintains its ordinance plants not as institutions for the fostering of fascist racism, but rather to furnish material to Allied armies. Our first concern therefore, should be the needs of American fighting men.

If any appeals specifying that we furnish only Aryan-made ammunition have issued from the battlefield, I'll wager my maintenance of membership union card against a swastika that they didn't come from Allied lines.

In Reply to Mr. Baer

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Sidney R. Baer's letter in Saturday's Mirror of Public Opinion about America's need for postwar exports exaggerated again the frequent opinion that exports are the first requisite to our reconversion to peace.

Baer says exports are essential. I insist that they are only desirable—and desirable only if we receive full American dollars in return.

His fear that "if the price-wage level is excessive . . . export outlets for agricultural products and manufactured goods would be materially lessened" can be overcome right here at home. If the price-wage level here is high, our own people will absorb as much merchandise as the foreign markets would have.

His fear that "a price level too far above world prices would also encourage a disproportionate volume of imports" also seems against my ideas of America's best interests. Would it be to our interest to trade one automobile for one carload of metal, or one automobile for two carloads of metal?

Are we going to subsidize our production lines and our foreign markets in order to keep everybody on the assembly line while our immigration laws, high taxes and lower incomes keep people from hiring or becoming domestic servants, nurses, beauticians, teachers, doctors, artists, etc.? Or are we going to adjust our economy to what we actually need, which is less employment in making things and more in providing services?

It takes less time to make an airplane, automobile, suit, shoe or loaf of bread than it ever did before, but it takes more time to make a doctor, a lawyer, a teacher, an artist or a file clerk than it used to. As a result, more and more of our man-hours (percentage) are being consumed in these personal services.

This trend will continue, for that is tomorrow.

ROBERT S. KUNKEL.

Decay of the Atlantic Charter

When the Atlantic Charter was first made public, in August, 1941, it was hailed far and wide as a new charter of human liberties. Winston Churchill, addressing the House of Commons, grew eloquent in describing his conference with the President and the signing of the document:

This was a meeting which marks forever in the pages of history the taking up by the English-speaking peoples, amid all the peril, tumult and confusion, of the guidance of the fortunes of the broad toiling masses in all the continents, and our loyal effort without any clog of selfish interest to lead them forward out of the miseries into which they have been plunged back to the broad highway of freedom and justice. This is the highest honor which could ever have come to any branch of the human race.

It was accepted eagerly by the oppressed and embattled peoples. Chinese, Belgians, Frenchmen, Poles, Czechs, Russians, Filipinos and others voiced their indorsement and gratitude. The Greek statement, by Prime Minister Tsouderos, is typical, and ironic today:

This declaration officially recognizes that the war aims of the Allied powers remain on the same high level which they have occupied in the conscience and soul of the free democratic countries of the world since the beginning of the struggle. We are all fighting for an ideal: to destroy the violent and brutal method of force used by the aggressors and to liberate the peoples of the world. Inspired by these ideas, and with an unshakable confidence in the triumph of our cause, I accept the resolution now proposed.

The United Nations formally embraced the Charter as the basis of their alliance in the joint declaration signed Jan. 2, 1942. The text of this document, together with that of the Charter, is reprinted on this page today.

Mr. Roosevelt now says that the Charter never existed as a formal signed document, although the signatures appear on every copy of the text, wherever published. Yet in his statement of Aug. 14, 1943, he spoke of that date as "the second anniversary of the signing of the Atlantic Charter." A few days later, he vigorously attacked its critics, and in terms strikingly different from his recent offhand remarks about its objectives being a long way off. He said in 1943:

I am everlastingly angry only at those who assert vociferously that the Four Freedoms and the Atlantic Charter are nonsense because they are unattainable. If those people had lived a century and a half ago, they would have sneered and said that the Declaration of Independence was utter piffle. If they had lived nearly a thousand years ago, they would have laughed uproariously at the idea of Magna Carta. And if they had lived several thousand years ago, they would have derided Moses when he came from the Mountain with the Ten Commandments.

Praise for the Charter continued to ring, and fresh pledges of its enforcement. Thus, Viscount Cranborne, Lord Privy Seal, reiterated the British view in June, 1942:

The British Government regards itself as absolutely pledged to carry out all the articles of the Atlantic Charter.

And Clement R. Attlee, Secretary of State for the Dominions, said much the same: "The

Benes Shows the Way

The plan which President Edouard Benes has adopted for reconstitution of the Government of Czechoslovakia should become the model for the renaissance of popular will in the liberated countries of Europe. It is comparable in many respects to the precedent set by De Gaulle.

Benes' Government is one of the very best of the governments-in-exile. If any of them should return home exactly as they are and take up the reins of government again as if nothing had happened, the Benes Government would probably be more nearly justified in doing it than any other.

But this man who bears a clear title to leadership, elected by his people, is too fine a liberal, too close to the living heart of his country, to do any such thing. His choice is at the utmost pole from the choice of the Perlot Government of Belgium, which moved cowed and bagged to Brussels.

Benes recognizes the primary nature of the resistance movement, the great right it has earned to influence the future of the country its members have dedicated their lives to. Therefore, the instant a new Czech state can be set up, the Cabinet-in-exile will resign, and Benes will appoint a new Cabinet predominantly from the resistance movement and representative of every complexion in it.

The new Government will be provisional, until national elections have been held. Six months after the provisional Government has been formed, Benes himself will resign.

That is a plan of men who love their country better than they love power. The Greek, Italian and Belgian debacles have come about because there have been imposed upon the people as leaders men who love power better than they love their country. Edouard Benes and Czechoslovakia are as a light to make plain the way.

Mr. Churchill Could Act

Why doesn't Mr. Churchill quit speaking empty platitudes about wanting to let the Greeks have whatever kind of government they want, and do the one thing which will permit them to have the kind of government they want?

Why doesn't he agree to the resignation of his man Papandreu, who has known for days he should resign but who is too weak even to quit without Churchill's permission? The obstacle to the formation of a Greek government in Greece is the British Government in Greece.

Remove the obstacle, and the Greek political parties, which were ready to unite behind the dean of the Liberal party, Themistokles Sophoulis, before they were provoked into civil war, may yet be able to unite.

But with every passing day, there occur still more fratricidal acts that can never be wholly expunged from Greek memory. With every day of civil war, the hope of permanent domestic peace diminishes.

If Mr. Churchill still tenaciously clings to the notion that he can get the Greeks to compromise on having things his way, he is handling something much more dangerous than an atomic Atlantic Charter remains the basis of his Majesty's Government's policy."

From American spokesmen, too, came new indorsements. Said Vice President Wallace:

The Atlantic Charter provides the broad base of general principles to safeguard our decisions. It is a charter of faith that must be worked out to endure; and the American people intend that it shall work and that it shall endure.

Said Sumner Welles, then Under Secretary of State, on Nov. 11, 1941:

Those high objectives set forth in the Charter of the Atlantic must be realized. They must be realized, quite apart from every other consideration, because of the fact that the individual interest of every man and woman in the United States will be advanced constantly with the measure in which the world where they live is governed by right and by justice, and the measure in which peace prevails.

But even while the first hosannas were ringing, the process of limiting the Charter began. When it was asked if its principles of self-determination applied to the Orient, particularly to British holdings there, Churchill gave this interpretation, barely a month after the charter was framed:

The joint declaration does not qualify in any way the various statements of policy which have been made from time to time about the development of constitutional government in India, Burma or other parts of the British Empire. . . . At the Atlantic meeting we had in mind primarily the restoration of the sovereignty, self-government and national life of the states and nations of Europe now under the Nazi yoke.

This, although the Charter spoke of "the right of all peoples to choose the form of government under which they live." Mr. Roosevelt said he did not agree with the Churchill amendment. When Wendell Willkie returned from his world tour in 1942 and reported that the Oriental peoples doubted our good faith in applying the Charter to them, the President authorized this quotation: "The Atlantic Charter applies to all humanity, as the Secretary of State and I have said several times before."

Again, Churchill modified the Charter by saying that it did not apply to Germany, though, in Point 4 of the Charter, mention is made of "all states, great or small, victor or vanquished." A few days ago, he gave a purported quotation from the Charter which proved not to be in the text. A secretary hastily explained that the Prime Minister had suffered a lapse of memory.

Seldom if ever in world history has a document within a short time been so highly praised, so variously interpreted by its authors, so lightly and offhandedly treated and virtually disowned.

Is it any wonder that all around the world people are seriously disturbed by the apparent decay of what they had regarded a charter of freedom and fair play, by the confusion as to what the Allies' war aims really are?

It is still time to abate the cynicism now provoked when the Atlantic Charter is mentioned. Mr. Roosevelt can speak out candidly. The Big Three can meet again and re-define its provisions—with, let us hope, a signed document this time as the result of their deliberations.

bomb. A settlement with British policy suppressing Greek self-determination would be only a preface to disaster.

The only kind of domestic settlement that will mean anything is a settlement made by the Greeks themselves. When will Mr. Churchill step out of the way and let the Greeks make it?

Land of the Golden Bull

Where the rock of Buda nods to the plain of Pest across the wide Danube, Hungary's capital, forced once again into the immortal task of mounting outer guard for Austria Vienna, suffers blight of Slavic cannon. Like Aachen before, surrounded Budapest contains last-ditch Germans. As Aachen to Americans, so presently, Budapest to Russians; and then the onward roll up the Danube to Vienna and beyond. . . .

History, which decrees travail for men who cannot manage their own houses, may note ironic consummation here. Budapest and tributary Hungary, which could breed great horses and mighty men in skirts, could not make a successful nation. If Kings and Counts basked in the hot baths of Margaret Island, it was only to return refreshed to warring. French Crusaders brought culture; Buda became beautiful under loving touch of French masons and Italian painters; Pest grew rich with Flemish, Venetian and Jewish merchants. Turks came. Romanians came. Now come Soviet cannon.

In the Golden Bull of 1222, the Magyar Magna Carta, Hungary took the long stride toward the light that led England to greatness. But Hungary faltered, stepped back; its capital became the seat of contriving Kings and Premiers who presently lost their seats and fled. Depression and inflation came, and starvation; and in that soil grew Adm. Horthy, the Regent who was a dictator. Then the Germans. Was there ever more fertile ground for Communism?

Yet Communism, militant or benign, will make no painless conquest of this land. Magyars hate Slavs. Both hate Germans, and Germans hate both. Individualist farmers in skirts will not cleave companionably to any outland doctrine. Bolshevik Bela Kun, insurance agent turned politician, had the chance in 1918—and was sent fleeing before the counter-revolution. Hungary, true daughter of Central Europe, is another impossible problem for peace-makers. So the impossible must be accomplished.

The way is dark. Yet there is a beacon. If the one Golden Bull die, another can be born.

ANOTHER HORROR OF WAR

The "Non-Existent" Atlantic Charter

Adventures of Basques' Leader And His Democratic Manifesto

Reprinted From the World Almanac

President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill met "Somewhere on the Atlantic" early in August, 1941, and issued a joint declaration of the peace aims of the United States and Great Britain—the Atlantic Charter. The official statement, covering the meeting, issued in Washington (Aug. 14), said:

The President of the United States and the Prime Minister, Mr. Churchill, representing His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom, have met at sea.

They have been accompanied by officials of their two governments, including high-ranking officers of their military, naval and air services.

The whole problem of the supply of munitions of war, as provided by the Lend-Lease Act, for the armed forces of the United States and for those countries actively engaged in resisting aggression has been further examined.

Lord Beaverbrook, the Minister of Supply of the British Government, has joined in these conferences. He is going to proceed to Washington to discuss further details with appropriate officials of the United States Government. These conferences will also cover the supply problems of the Soviet Union.

The President and the Prime Minister have had several conferences. They have considered the dangers to world civilization arising from the policies of military domination by conquest upon which the Hitlerite government of Germany and other governments associated therewith have embarked, and have made clear the steps which their countries are respectively taking for their safety in the face of these dangers.

They have agreed upon the following joint declaration:

The President of the United States of America and the Prime Minister, Mr. Churchill, representing His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom, being met together, deem it right to make known certain common principles in the national policies of their respective countries on which they base their hopes for a better future for the world.

FIRST, their countries seek no aggrandizement, territorial or other;

SECOND, they desire to see no territorial changes that do not accord with the freely expressed wishes of the peoples concerned;

THIRD, they respect the right of all peoples to choose the form of government under which they will live; and they wish to see sovereign rights and self-government restored to those who have been forcibly deprived of them;

FOURTH, they will endeavor, with due respect for their existing obligations, to further the enjoyment by all states, great or small, victor or vanquished, of access, on equal terms, to the trade and to the materials of the world which are needed for their economic prosperity;

FIFTH, they desire to bring about the fullest collaboration between all nations in the economic field with the object of securing, for all, improved labor standards, economic adjustment and social security;

SIXTH, after the final destruction of the Nazi tyranny, they hope to see established a peace which will afford to all nations the means of dwelling in safety within their own boundaries, and which will afford assurance that all the men in all the lands may live out their lives in freedom from fear and want;

SEVENTH, such a peace should enable all men to traverse the high seas and oceans without hindrance;

EIGHTH, they believe that all of the nations of the world, for realistic as well as spiritual reasons, must come to the abandonment of the use of force. Since no future peace can be maintained if land, sea or air armaments continue to be employed by nations which threaten, or may threaten, aggression outside of their frontiers, they believe, pending the establishment of a wider and permanent system of general security, that the disarmament of such nations is essential. They will likewise aid and encourage all other practicable measures which will lighten for peace-loving peoples the crushing burden of armaments.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

WINSTON S. CHURCHILL.

Declaration By the United Nations

All 26 countries at war with one or more of the Axis powers pledged themselves (Jan. 2, 1942) in Washington in a "Declaration by the United Nations" not to make a separate armistice or peace and to employ full military or economic resources against the enemy each is fighting.

The signatory powers to the declaration are the United States, United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, China, Australia, Belgium, Canada, Costa Rica, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, India, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Norway, Panama, Poland, South Africa and Yugoslavia, Mexico and the Philippines joined later.

These governments "having subscribed to a common program of purposes and principles embodied in the joint declaration of the President of the United States of America and the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland dated Aug. 14, 1941, known as the Atlantic Charter, being convinced that complete victory over their enemies is essential to defend life, liberty, independence and religious freedom, and to preserve human rights and justice in their own lands as well as in other lands, and that they are now engaged in a common struggle against savage and brutal forces seeking to subjugate the world, declare:

"(1) Each government pledges itself to employ its full resources, military or economic, against those members of the Tripartite Pact and its adherents with which such government is at war.

"(2) Each government pledges itself to co-operate with the governments signatory hereto and not to make a separate armistice or peace with the enemies."

A NEW CIGARETTE THEORY

From the Chicago Daily News.

Ah! The secret is out! Cigarettes are scarce because we captured so many Germans.

"Watson, the Germans planned it that way. They surrendered to get their prisoners cigarette allowances and make the Yankees smoke-hungry."

When Mussolini's invincible legions began to surrender wholesale and retail in North Africa, someone suggested that he had a plan to starve England by eating up all the British chow. Maybe that fellow was the same as the one who solved the great cigarette mystery.

"Escape Via Berlin," by Jose Antonio de Aguirre. (Macmillan Co., New York.)

This book is at once a thrilling adventure story and a democratic manifesto. The author, president of the Basque Government-in-Exile and lecturer at Columbia University, speaks as one having authority and not as a scribe. Based upon his diary, smuggled out of Germany inside his small daughter's doll, the greater part of this account relates his experiences from May, 1940, to August, 1941, from the collapse of France to his arrival in South America. The last fifth of the book sums up Dr. Aguirre's political faith, the main tenets of which permeate the narration of his escape from Fascist Europe.

"The Lady Vanishes," "Journey Into Fear" and "Above Suspicion" have nothing on "Escape Via Berlin" in dramatic suspense. Fleeing along highways, ducking into ditches to escape machine-gunning, arguing and pleading with petty officials—thus Aguirre, his wife and two small children, with other refugees, hoped to avoid capture. He knew all too well that short shrift would be his lot in Nazi hands. So he became Panamanian business man, Dr. Alvarez, complete with beard and spectacles.

Escape by normal channels, especially through Spain and Portugal, being impossible for him, "Dr. Alvarez" sought sanctuary via Berlin. No member of the Gestapo looked there, and rumors reported his escape from the Continent. At Berlin, he fortunately enjoyed the good offices of various South American representatives and of the Dominican Minister.

Despite remarkable kindness, Aguirre's predicament was of course a nightmare. Separated from wife and children, whose fate was always in doubt, constantly fearful of discovery, eaten alternately with feverish hope and despair, he went from day to day, week to week, month to month. Finally, after a year, he was united with his family, and with them found refuge in Sweden. Even here he could not be at peace. Only arrival in Brazil, after a most hazardous voyage, brought security.

Exciting and informing as this account is, the pages relating to the Spanish Civil War and the whole European scene are not less so. The moral bankruptcy and intellectual confusion of Franco's regime and its defenders come clearly to light. Aguirre is an ardent Catholic; he deplores the anti-clerical excesses and the social timidity of the Spanish Republic, but the utter falsity of Franco's role as defender of Christian civilization has never been more sharply exposed. The shortcomings of the Republic—perhaps "the most honest" government in Spanish history—compromised only the Republic itself. The Franco regime, with its cruelties and lies, compromised Christ.

This Basque from Guernica is a citizen of the world with a far clearer vision of its proper values and possible destiny than many leaders of larger nations. His creed, a statement wrung out of bitter experience, may well be both a guide and a solace to those seeking a better world. The sense of reality, the transcendent faith combine to run the paralyzing cynicism of the hard-boiled know-it-all off the stage.

Cartoons by an Army Artist

Sgt. Ralph Stein is a comic artist on the staff of Yank, the Army weekly. A generous batch of his cartoons is made available to the civilian public in "What Am I Laughing At?" (Whitlsey). His wildly imaginative caricatures of military life as it is and as it might be supply the answer to the question asked by the title.

DOROTHY THOMPSON

'Free Plebiscites' in Greece

It is a long time since Mr. Churchill was a journalist. Otherwise he might have brought a reporter's memory to the Greek situation. It is all very well to talk about free elections as a means of settling the Greek problem. But what Americans and Britons associate with these words is meaningless against the background of modern Greek history.

Mr. Eden has said that the British Government is neither for nor against the Greek monarchy, and King George II has said that he will await the outcome of a free plebiscite. This is not the first time he has said this, and no doubt the Greek people remember both the pledge and what happened.

It Sounded Noble—But.

In the summer of 1935, when George II had been in exile for 12 years, having been kicked out by a 1923 rising, he announced that he would not return to Greece unless a fair and complete plebiscite had been held. In his favor, the plebiscite preceded by a truce of a month so that the people could make up their minds in calm, and no attempt made to restore him to the throne by force.

This all sounded very noble. But what happened has been described by an Australian journalist, Bert Birtles, who, by chance, was in Greece at the time.

A plebiscite was announced, but on Oct. 10, 1935, the War Minister, Kondylis, who up to that time had been a republican, met a coup d'etat, and threw out the Cabinet with the assistance of the Army. The Greek people, in the countryside, found out about it when troops marched through the towns and villages playing the royal march which had been forbidden for 12 years.

In the following days, there were mass arrests of all republican leaders. Now the "plebiscite" was held—and it was exactly as Birtles' "plebiscites." Only the royalists could present their case. The "secret" ballot consisted of a royalist ballot (blue) and a republican (red). The royalist ballot was headed "for crowned democracy." The republican, "for every one was presumably voting for democracy. The ballots were put in transparent envelopes, so the police at the polls knew how everybody voted.

Crooked Election. Birtles went to the polls with a republican. When he entered the booth, the republican was handed a royalist ballot. When he asked for a republican ballot, he was told to get out. When he insisted on his legal right, he was beaten up. Birtles talked during the day and evening with royalist officers and soldiers. They told him frankly that they had been voting over and over all day. One confessed to repeating 17 times—his whole company. Believe it or not, the majority was 98 per cent for the King, even in completely republican Salonika. Then the King, after all his fine words, came back and stood back on the bayonets of the dictators. This 1935 plebiscite is the last "free election" the Greeks can recall. Now they are moved as they are for "democracy" and we hear amongst the shots the unmistakable sound of a Bronx cheer. Greek experience records that whoever is in power wins plebiscites.

Regency Is Bunk.

The legitimate government we are backing (we being Britain, and I associate myself with Britain since we are Allies and cannot perform Pontius Pilate acts of irresponsibility) rests its legitimacy on this 1935 plebiscite. Were I British I would certainly never associate this concept of legitimacy with the British crown or the British constitution.

Legitimacy cannot be maintained in Greece. It can only be created. The best way to create a basis for legitimate government is to rest it on the desires of the people, after making every effort to discern what those desires are. Actually that is the only legitimate basis for any government today, including the British.

Devices like a regency are all exploded bunk. The last Greek regent was the usurper Kondylis—the fellow who conducted that 1935 plebiscite. Regent plus plebiscite, called democracy, spell military dictatorship to the Greek people. Metaxas, in Mr. Birtles' book, appears in a photograph in an armband with a swastika on it.

It's Good To Look Back. Mr. Churchill reported, in horror, that there were German units fighting with the Greek resistance forces. Perhaps Mr. Churchill forgot that there were German units fighting against Franco in Spain—and fighting against Hitler's German forces. The other day Gen. de Gaulle granted full equality with the French Maquis to a unit of 400 Germans, who had been fighting with the Maquis against the Nazis throughout the whole occupation.

Of course, that again is not quite legitimate—according to Hoyle every national must be for his own government and individual liberty must not include the right to decide who is in and what is not worth dying for.

I've never held with the theory that having set one's hand to the plough, one could never look back. If one is ploughing, it is good thing to look around and see how one can get back.

the resistance and the Maquis. But these new members are not disciplined or indoctrinated as old members are. Therefore, the French Communists need a year or two to consolidate their enlarged party and develop new leaders.

But the weight of the Communist numbers imposed certain limits upon DeGaulle. Suppose he fails to heed the popular clamor for nationalization of munitions plants, of mines, electrical companies and credit. Unless DeGaulle pushes some of these reforms—which are demanded by French moderates and even by the majority of Catholics in the Christian Democratic party—he will push a great many moderate Frenchmen into the camp of the Communists.

This is why DeGaulle is the only alternative to a left-wing, Communist-dominated government in France. Whether London or Washington recognize this or not, DeGaulle must realize the situation. DeGaulle may support Socialist reforms which seem revolutionary to us. Nevertheless, DeGaulle thus far represents France's one chance to make its revolution with restraint and an

One Hundredth Anniversary of the Co-operative

A CENTENARY passed the other day that was marked with a little public fanfare. But to millions of men and women all over the world it meant a great deal.

Dec. 21 was the hundredth anniversary of the founding of the first co-operative society in Rochdale, which in 1844 was a desperately poor mill town in England's textile country.

True Democracy.

Out of that small beginning has come a worldwide growth, so that just before the war there were 800,000 co-operative associations of various types, with a membership of 145 million in 56 countries. Those impressive statistics are tribute to the force of the idea behind the co-operative movement.

Democratic in the true sense of the word, the co-operatives are based on the enterprise and initiative of individuals who band together of their own free will to better their lot in life. In some parts of the world, conspicuously Scandinavia, they have grown to a point at which they successfully challenged the power of monopolies and trusts to force down to reasonable levels the prices of ordinary necessities.

In many countries, perhaps in most, they have competed on an equal basis with private enterprise. Often, as in Sweden, they have provided a stimulus that has resulted in better quality and better service.

What Nazis and Reds Did.

In Nazi-occupied Europe, the co-operatives have largely been destroyed or undermined. Where the Germans could not take them over, they struck them down. Co-operative leaders have suffered torture and death in concentration camps for their devotion to democracy.

Totalitarianism of the left and the right will tolerate this instrument of the "middle way." When they had served their usefulness after the Bolshevik revolution of 1917, the co-operatives that had existed in Czarist Russia were liquidated by the Communists.

If Europe's co-operatives can be re-established, they may help to prevent a violent swing toward Communism or a new kind of Fascism. They were very important in the economy of Yugoslavia, for example, but now there is a clear indication that the forces at present dominating the country— Tito's partisans, with Russia's back of Tito—do not want co-operatives in the old democratic sense.

Here the decisions made by the United Nations' Rehabilitation Administration can be of utmost importance. UNRRA has studied the possibility of using NORMANDY GYMNASIUM, Dec. 28.—Beaumont and Brentwood advanced to the semifinals of the Red Division of the invitational basketball tournament here in today's early games, Beaumont defeating McKinley, also a City League member, by 30 to 24, and Brentwood downing Riverview Gardens, 24 to 21.

The Beaumont-McKinley game was close all the way, but after the North Siders took a good lead in the opening quarter, the Goldbugs never were able to catch up.

A total of 37 fouls were called, 21 against McKinley. On the other hand, McKinley made good use of 21 free throw attempts. Mike Gubany tossing in six while missing on only two, and leading his team in scoring with 10 points. High point man for the game was Beaumont's Roy Slevens, who sank five field goals and four free throws for 14 points. Chapman, McKinley guard, and Lanche, Beaumont forward, also clicked on four free tosses each.

In the Brentwood-Riverview game, Jack Kusch for the winners and Gene Huffman for the losers each made 12 points.

Tonight's program will be as attractive as any the fans will have a chance to see this season because it includes not only Cleveland, which will meet Washington at 8:30, but also Bismarck, the State and Green Division champion, which will play St. Charles at 7:30 o'clock.

As if that were not enough, the season will begin with a hum-dinger between two unbeaten clubs—Webster Groves and Springfield—at 6:30 o'clock. The windup at 8:30 will pit St. Peter's of St. Charles against Maplewood.

Today's program got off to a flying start when Clayton defeated Country Day, 26-23, in an overtime period in a Red Division consolation game. Bob Zell's free throw for Clayton in the final 30 seconds of regulation time tied the score at 23 and then Stan Rosenberg made a field goal and John Morrow a free throw to provide Clayton's winning margin in the extra three minutes.

In the second Red Division consolation contest, Weston won from Moberly, 37-17, with Larry Lullin scoring 14 of the winning team's points. Weston will next oppose Clayton in the consolation semifinals.

Some of the fans who saw Springfield take Roosevelt into camp, 48 to 36, in the first pick Coach Bob Vanatta's team to reach the Green final, but in order to do that, the Southwest Missourians not only have to dispose of Webster Groves' steamroller, but also will have to eliminate Bismarck, presuming that the defending champions defeat St. Charles.

Springfield showed plenty of power as Freshman Ed Moore, Eureka ace, and Bill Birkenback, divided 25 points between them, to win easily from Roosevelt. Springfield scored 19 points in the first quarter, as many as Roosevelt did in the game.

Webster started slowly against Southwest and held a slim, 16-14 lead at the half, but then the Statesmen began clicking, registering 17 points in the second quarter to lead 33-16 at the fourth while the best Southwest could do was a field goal and free throw by August (Junior) Duchek in the last two quarters. After Southwest missed 10 straight throws, Duchek made good on one in the last period. Webster made 10 of its 14 tries, good to win, 40 to 17.

Without John (Red) Reagan, Bismarck did not look like the aggregation that walked through the tournament last year, but the boys managed to come through with a well-deserved verdict over Burroughs, 33 to 21. Reagan sat on the bench and watched his mates slowly but steadily draw away from the ABC League representatives.

Cleveland, with the classy Bob Schmidt in its lineup, is the cynosure of all the spectators because of the great passing show he puts on, and the 14 others tallied by Center Harold Uthoff.

The real upset of the tournament was turned in by St. Charles, which stunned McBride, 34 to 32. The Pirates played without two of their regulars—Ted Westmeier and Vernon Hackman, who have been working at school and were unable to attend practice. In spite of that handicap, the County school kept at McBride's heels all the way.

Trailing, 32 to 29, with three minutes to go, Bob Ohlmeier brought St. Charles to within a point of a tie with his eighth field goal. Then his running mate, Ervin Stocher, went out on five fouls, to the despair of the St. Charles fans. McBride's ace, Don Hensieck, also fouled out in the last minute of play, giving Gene Fields a chance to tie the score, but he missed. Ohlmeier, however, was fouled in the act of shooting for the basket. He tied the score with his first shot, but missed the second. In the skirmish under the hoop that followed, Ohlmeier grabbed the ball and tallied the game-winning points. They also gave him a total of 22 for the contest.

Reagan-less Bismarck Marches On

McQuinn and Christman Are Tops

Official American League Fielding Averages Show Two Brownies Best at Their Positions.

By Herman Wecke

Two members of the Browns—George McQuinn, first baseman and Mark Christman, third sacker—made the all-fielding team of the American League, official 1944 averages released today show. McQuinn had a fielding mark of .994, while Christman's figure was .972.

McQuinn missed only nine of his 1413 chances, while Christman made 14 errors in 802 chances. Only one hot-corner guardian, Ken Keltner of the Indians, had more chances. He finished with 555. The St. Louis star was in 34 double plays to trail Keltner by three in this respect. McQuinn was in 118 two-ply killings.

George Stirmweiss, Yankee star, was tops among the second sackers; Lou Boudreau, Cleveland manager, paced the shortstops, while Thurman Tucker of the White Sox was the leading outfielder. Among the catchers, Buddy Rosar, Cleveland and Roy Partee, Boston, showed the way with a .989 percentage. Sixteen pitchers, including Jakucki, Hollander, Caster, Zolack and West of the Browns, went through the campaign without an error.

In team fielding, the Browns tied for third, with .972, with the

New Flyer to Report Today

While Jim Russell, one of the Flyers' new players, is scheduled to report to the club today, another injured member of the squad, Ronnie Hudson, is to undergo an operation. Hudson suffered a broken cheek bone in Tuesday's game with Indianapolis and is likely to be lost to the team for the remainder of the season.

Russell was obtained from Buffalo in a trade for Fred Kovach, and it is likely that he will fit into Hudson's place on a forward line with George Blake and Johnny Horeck. Coach Nap Emma scheduled a two-hour workout today in preparation for the Flyers' next American League game—against the Hershey Bears at Hershey, Pa., Saturday.

Joe MacIntosh, defenseman who has been out of the lineup for the past weeks with a shoulder injury, will depart with the club and is expected to be used in both the Hershey game and in a contest with the Rhode Island Reds at Providence Sunday night.

Morey Rimstad, star center purchased from Buffalo last week, is due to report to the Flyers in time for next Tuesday's contest at the Arena with Hershey.

West Coaches Discover Kicker--Mr. Jim Kekeris

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 28 (AP).—Les Horvath, triple threat Ohio State All-America halfback who reported late because of college examinations, is on the injured list, with the twentieth annual East-West football classic only five days away.

However, both Horvath, whose ankle is damaged, and Jack Mead, 205-pound end from Wisconsin who has a knee ailment, worked out with their East teammates in an indoor practice yesterday at the University of Santa Clara gymnasium. Francis Broger, Michigan State wingman, was on the sidelines with an injured ankle. The West players worked out in the rain yesterday and scheduled a full scrimmage session today. The West coaches discovered they had a good field goal kicker in Jim Kekeris, 270-pound Missouri tackle. He consistently kicked the pipskin through the uprights from 35 yards.

Take It From Thomas, This Is 'Toughest Ever.'

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 28 (AP).—A grim and determined Frank Thomas, coach of seven previous Alabama postseason bowl football teams, caused from his work long enough here today to say that the Crimson Tide's coming Sugar Bowl clash with the Duke Blue Devils stacks up as the "toughest assignment we ever faced on a New Year's day."

"Duke has age, weight and experience on us," Thomas offered, "and things look awfully tough to us right now. But our boys realize what they are up against and they are going about getting ready in the proper manner."

The Tide's entire squad of 36 players and five coaches arrived here by bus in a downpour of rain late yesterday and wasted little time in getting to work on the Louisiana State gridiron. The Alabama players, including Thomas, will sleep in the stadium dormitory and hold daily workouts in the afternoon before leaving for New Orleans and the Sugar Bowl game Sunday morning.

Thomas said that Lowell Tew, star freshman wingback from Waynesboro, Miss., who was handicapped by an ankle injury during the regular season, has recovered and that barring injury in remaining practices, the Tide will start at full power against the Blue Devils.

Tulsa Coach Glad Tech Is Favored at Miami.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 28 (AP).—Georgia Tech isn't looking for any bad weather in Miami, but if by perchance it does happen to rain on New Year's day, the Engineers will still throw passes against Tulsa.

"Our running attack isn't up to par," he said, "Assistant Coach Bobby Dodd said, 'but we don't need it with our passing and kicking.'"

Tech has established a favorite at odds of from 7 to 5 to 2 to 1 and it came as glad tidings to Tulsa Coach Henry Frnk.

"I like for the odds to be against us," he said, "because our team always has the best chance."

Frnk expects the game to be the best of any of the bowl affairs. "This game has the makings of a natural, and you can bet the fans won't be disappointed regardless of who wins," he said.

Ten Men Arrested for Gambling at Basket Game at Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 28 (AP).—Ten men, described by police as "big time gamblers," were arrested during a collegiate doubleheader basketball game at Convention Hall last night and charged with disorderly conduct and gambling. One of those arrested, identified by police as George Fox, 41, of the Bronx, N. Y., was said by detectives to have come to Philadelphia "to make a killing."

Police said he had $1305 in his pockets. Detectives said Fox was identified prominently with a New York clique of gamblers reported to reap a rich harvest at New York basketball games. Police said some of the nine others arrested had been active in gambling at baseball games at Shibe Park, a practice which was broken up by police after the late baseball commissioner, Kenesaw Mountain Landis, protested against the activities.

Officers said the men made virtually no attempt to hide their gambling and that money was passed openly.

Wings to Play Malden.

The Navy Wings basketball team will attempt to get back into the win column tonight when it opposes the Maine Army Air Base team from Malden, Mo., at Lambert Field, Malden's lineup will include several former outstanding college and high school stars.

Eleven games are on the Navy team's schedule for January, 10 for February and the final on March 7.

NATIONAL INCOME NOW AT 159-BILLION HIGH

1945 Total to Be Lower, However, Commerce Department Predicts.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28 (AP).—War-time economic activity increased the national income to 159 billion dollars in 1944, breaking all previous records. But in 1945, say Commerce Department experts, business will not be so active. Early this year business hit the top and leveled off. Here are the official estimates for 1944—all new records:

1. "National product," 197 billion dollars. This is the total value of goods and services produced. In 1943 it was 186.5 billion and in 1939 only 88.6 billion.

2. "National income," 159 billion dollars. This is defined as all income earned by individuals through participation in production—wages, salaries, dividends and interest. Last year it was 147.9 billion and in 1939 it was 70.8 billion.

3. "Income payments to individuals," 155 billion dollars. In some ways this is considered a better economic yardstick than "national income," because it consists of money actually received by individuals. It does not include the retained earnings of corporations, but includes social security benefits and payments to dependents of service men, which are not a part of "national income."

Income payments last year were 142.3 billion. In 1939 they had been 70.8 billion. A Commerce Department economist broke down the 1944 figure of 197 billion dollars in "national product" this way:

War purchases, $5 billion. Consumer spending, 96.6 billion (a new record, announced last week). Governmental nonwar spending, 13 billion. "Private capital formation," 2.6 billion. "Private capital formation" is a technical term for such items as private construction, private purchases of machinery and other producers' goods, and changes in business inventories and foreign trade balance.

The department said net income of farm operators, other unincorporated business showed only small gains over 1943.

FUEL TANK HITS FAIL TO STOP YANK BOMBER

Madison (Ill.) Man Pilots
Wonderous Wanda in Raids on Japanese Islands.

ARMY AIR FORCES HEAD-QUARTERS, Central Pacific, Delayed (AP).—Gasoline tanks punc-tured on two missions by Japanese ground fire didn't prevent Wonderous Wanda from dropping bombs on enemy targets.

Piloted by Lt. Ben C. Turski of Madison, Ill., the Liberator came back to its Marianas base after delivering heavy blows at Japanese strongholds on Iwo and Chichi Islands.

"On a dusk raid against Iwo
we were intercepted by Jap fighter planes," Lt. Turski said. "Our gunners beat them off and we hit the airfield with our bombs, but while over the target ground fire knocked a hole in our right wing.
Another burst beneath us and shrapnel tore through our auxiliary gas tank. We had just emptied the gasoline from this auxiliary to the regular tank."

On another raid against shipping in Chichi Island harbor, Lt.
Turski's B-24 group sank three Japanese cargo ships. Again his plane was hit in the wing and in the auxiliary gasoline tank—but again luck was with the crew and there was no explosion.

A Japanese Zero was shot down by Lt. Turski's crew later near Iwo.

"We went in at noon," Lt. Turski said. "Just before we reached the target we were intercepted by six Zeros. Our gunners fought them off and we made the run.
Our bombs landing squarely on the airfield. As we were leaving one Zero dived on us. Our ball turret gunner caught him in his sights and the Jap went into a spiral, hit the water and exploded."

Lt. Turski's parents, Mr. and
Mrs. Faustyn Turski, live at 1821 Edwardsville street, Madison. His wife, Wanda, and son, Ronald Ben, live at 469 Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis.

Grandma was a great one for phlegm and relieving coughs.

colds and many other simple pains and aches of her family. The rub she used was medicated in her own way but she insisted that it contain mutton suet. She liked the way mutton suet disappeared as it helped carry medication to nerve ends in the skin to relieve pain.

Today science has modernized
Grandma's old-time pain relief principle to bring you Penetro, the salve with a base that contains old fashioned mutton suet plus 5 ac-

COUNTY PILOT GOES JAP-HUNTING ON GUAM

Took Pot Shots From Plane
at Trapped Enemy Unit—Others Tell Experiences.

Capt. John H. Windsor of Webster Groves, an Army observation pilot attached to the Fleet Marine Force in the Pacific, and now home for his first Christmas and New Year's celebrations since 1939, had more experiences on land during the Guam invasion than in the sky.

The 31-year-old officer, who lives at 650 Hollywood place with his wife, Mrs. Louise Windsor, and their two children, served during most of the invasion as air-ground liaison for American bombers and fighters which swept over Japanese positions.

"There were times when I felt like a fish out of water, especially when the Japs tried to bayonet us in our foxholes at night," he said.
On one occasion, Capt. Windsor went Jap-hunting in a comparatively slow observation plane when a group of the enemy were trapped on open ground with cliffs on one side, the ocean on the other.

Armed with a sub-machine gun,
Capt. Windsor sat in the back seat of the cruising plane, taking pot shots at any Japs who made for protecting caves in the cliff.
Marines came along later and finished the job.

On the tenth day on Guam, he related, Marines bathing in a pool were waylaid by Jap snipers who evidently had waited days for such an opportunity. Several men were killed and a number were wounded.

"The ones who were hurt bothered us," he said, "because we couldn't see the snipers and they prevented us from getting the injured men out for treatment. A group of brave Navy hospital corpsmen climbed down into the pool, got the wounded and carried them back as though they were used to doing the same sort of thing every day. All this was in the midst of enemy fire."

Capt. Windsor was attached to the 110th Observation Squadron, a National Guard unit at Lambert Field, before he was called to active duty in December, 1942. He has been overseas 16 months. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Windsor, of the Webster Groves address.

Pilot of 57 Missions in Pacific.
Lt. (jg) J. Robert Burrell, pilot on a Navy Liberator bomber, has returned home after 12 months active duty in the Southwest Pacific to visit his wife, Mrs. Mildred Burrell, 2930 Trentley avenue, East St. Louis, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Burrell, of 625 South Skinker boulevard.

Lt. Burrell was in combat areas of Munda, Bougainville, Admiralty, Owl, Blak, Peleliu, Morotai and Philippine Islands. His crew took part in six major engagements and flew 57 missions. He has two younger brothers in the Navy Air Service, Aviation Cadet
John Burrell, stationed in Corona,
Cal., and Chief Yeoman William Burrell, expected to leave soon for service with the Pacific Fleet.

Pilot Hunts Submarines.
Lt. Orville Klocekner, 28, pilot of a Navy patrol bomber in the South Pacific, hunted Japanese submarines off Saipan, Tinian, Peleliu and Guam during invasions of those islands, and his squadron was credited with three sinkings and two "possibles," he told the Post-Dispatch today.

Lt. Klocekner is spending a 30-day leave here with his wife, Mrs.
Adele Klocekner, 6630 Winona avenue, and his parents, Mr. and
Mrs. William A. Klocekner, 6731
Robin avenue, Westland. He saw service in the Caribbean area prior to his Pacific assignment.

Exploits in Holland.
Warrant Officer Henry Bartosch Jr., former St. Louis Postoffice employee, handled many details of the airborne invasion of Holland as assistant secretary to the General Staff of Lt. Gen.
Lewis H. Brereton according to a First Allied Airborne Army dispatch. His parents live at 3016A
Chippewa street.

Bartosch, who was assistant to the superintendent of the workroom floor at the postoffice here before entering service in October, 1941, was chosen by Brig. Gen.
Patrick J. Hurley, former Secretary of War, during the African campaign to accompany him as personal secretary on a tour throughout the Middle East.

As a member of the first crew to low recovered slides used in the invasion of Holland out of the combat area to a rear depot in Belgium, Staff Sgt. Joseph E.
Monroe, radio operator of a 315th
Troop Carrier Group squadron, received the personal congratulations of Maj. Gen. Paul L. Williams, chief of the United States
Troop Carrier Forces, a dispatch from the First Allied Airborne
Army reported.

Monroe, husband of Mrs. Nellie Monroe, 2014 Hebert street, also participated in the invasion work of hauling paratroops over the combat area.

Continuance of severance pay for workers entering the armed services was provided in a labor settlement at the Atlas Powder Co.'s Weldon Spring plant announced yesterday by the Regional War Labor Board at Kansas City.

Men employed at least six months will receive about one month's wages on leaving for service, and men employed a minimum of 18 months will receive about two months' pay.

The WLB directed further that a checkoff system for collection of union dues be maintained by the company, and that employees maintain their membership in the union, CIO United Gas, Coke and Chemical Workers' Local 222. Industry members of the board dismissed on both these provisions.

An Odd Career

He Tests Validity Of Catch Phrases

By Thornton Delehanty

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 27.

GOING on the theory that there's a bit of ham in every actor, one of the more virulent Hollywood pragmatists walked into Ciro's night club the other evening wearing a flowing cape and a Windsor tie and carrying an ivory-handle cane, sat down at a ring-side table and had set before him a large, handsomely-caricatured ham.

ED GARDNER... HE WAS ONLY HUNGRY.

Deliberately, with Robert Mantell flourishes, he went to work on the ham, paying no attention to the dancers or to the occupants of the tables around him. Nor did anyone pay conspicuous attention to him. A couple of photographers took pictures in a routine way, attracting the notice of Ed Gardner, of Duffy's Tavern, who came over to the table and sat down. "That's all I wanted to know," said our friend to Ed, "you're a bigger ham than I am." Ed protested that he was only hungry.

Jim Moran has been pulling stunts like that for years. It hasn't made him famous, but it has given him an interesting and varied life. He drifted to Hollywood a couple of years ago from Alaska, where he had gone to sell iceboxes to the Eskimos. He had heard that Eskimos had a peculiarly high sales resistance to iceboxes and he wanted to find out if it was true. It wasn't. He says he could be there now, doing a whopping business, but he lost interest after the first flush of success.

MORAN'S MISSION TO SITKA came about characteristically. He had left his native city of Washington, bound for nowhere in particular, and found himself in Chicago, and, what was worse, without funds. There was a convention of icebox manufacturers holding forth in that city and Moran joined it. He gave the sales boys a spiel on salesmanship. He said he had heard a simile about something being "as difficult as selling refrigerators to Eskimos." He believed it could be done. He offered to go to Alaska and prove it. The icebox manufacturers were entranced. They provided Jim with samples and gave him travel money. They got a lot of publicity out of it and Jim satisfied his curiosity. His life had been passed largely in testing the validity of catch phrases and slogans which have been unquestioningly accepted by usage. In Washington once he bought a cartload of hay, dumped it in the street, tossed in a needle and burrowed in after it. He came up with the needle two days later, so the legend goes. It caused a stir in those prewar, bucolic Washington days and, incidentally, won some publicity for the hotel which happened to adjoin the impromptu haystack.

MORAN IS AN ITINERANT publicity man with an aversion to settling down in one spot or one job. A freak in his profession, he isn't interested in making or keeping money. He likes to be doing two or three things at a time, including nothing. Right now he is making his debut as a movie actor at RKO in a horror picture called "Body Snatchers." He didn't choose that picture. It was chosen for him. All he knew was that he wanted to try screen acting. Instead of getting himself an agent or hounding the studios, he grew himself the longest beard he could. It was a two-foot beard, and walking down the street with it one day, Moran attracted the attention of an agent who happened to know that RKO was looking for a bearded character actor. Moran was signed for a role in support of Boris Karloff and Bela Lugosi. When they started shooting the picture they decided to change Moran's part to a smooth-faced character. They shaved his beard.

HIS CURRENT PREOCCUPATION with acting hasn't diverted his talent for publicity. In fact, if anything, it has sharpened it. The Ciro stunt was a direct outcome of his connection with the studio and was, of course, aimed to focus a bit of attention on "The Body Snatchers." Nor could he have pulled it off without the help of the studio. The cape and the flowing tie were procured from the property department and were worn once by John Barrymore in a picture. Moran likes to hang out with the publicity boys and suggest stunts, some of which are a bit too florid for Hollywood. He was heartbroken when another idea of his for "The Body Snatchers" was turned down. He wanted to find out if anybody could be as "drunk as a hoot owl," or, perhaps, if a hoot owl could really get drunk. His plan was to equip himself with a hoot owl and a bottle of whisky and make the test in a cemetery near the RKO lot. The idea was frowned on by the studio's legal department, which felt that any attendant publicity might bring unfavorable repercussions from women's clubs and temperance societies, to say nothing of the S. P. C. A. and the grave diggers' union.

MORAN SAYS HE ATTENDED schools in 17 states before graduating from high school in Washington. He then embarked on a newspaper career which included everything from selling classified ads to writing feature stories. His natural fondness for people coupled with his predilection for the fanciful or confabular, world led him at one time to take a job as a guide on a Washington sightseeing bus, where he took delight in confounding his charges with learned but slightly chaotic dissertations on the Lincoln Memorial, the Library of Congress, the White House and other landmarks which had no immediate connection with the subject of his discourse. One of his proudest achievements concerns a chimpanzee in a movie studio that was plining for its mate in Africa. The chimp moaned in the corner of its cage, uttering pitiful cries, and was wasting away. Moran made phonograph recordings of the chimp's wallings, sent them to an explorer in Africa with the request that the record be played in the jungle and the answering cries of the chimps be recorded. The consolatory voices of the African chimps were then played to the Hollywood captive, with therapeutic results.

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM a man nearing 40, have never been married or even in love till recently. Two years ago I became acquainted with my next-door neighbors, a man and his wife, with two children, ages 13 and 8. This man was a heavy drinker, always wanted my company at all times. When drinking he was most profane and abusive and even tried to strike his wife, which I prevented, several times. I began to feel very sorry for her and tried to be kind to her whenever I could. My treatment for her was mistaken for love, which it was not for a long time. Then I did fall in love with her, as she had with me. Her children and I were fond of each other and had good times together. This woman's husband discovered our affection for each other, but refused her a divorce. I moved from the neighborhood, but still see her. He goes around telling everyone I have stolen his wife and am a rat, but doesn't treat her any better, and has even threatened my life. He has been increasingly abusive to her so that she is afraid to start divorce proceedings. We love each other so much we can't give each other up. What do you think we should do?

HOPELESS.

THE final break should have been made when you left the neighborhood. To continue to see this woman is only making her life harder, causing her husband to be that much more abusive. Why she meekly endures such treatment is a mystery. Even if she is afraid of him she does not need to submit, for the police will protect her if she asks it. If she will go to Frank X. Reller, Children's Building, Thirteenth and Clark, he may be able to make her husband see the error of his ways. Or if she definitely wants to leave him, then she should talk matters over with a lawyer and follow whatever course he suggests to her. Your presence will only make matters harder for her while this is going on, so unless this woman makes a definite break and divorces her husband, the greatest kindness you can do will be to keep away from her and not interfere.

Dear Martha Carr:

DO YOU THINK THERE WOULD be any use trying to have a New Year's Eve party when there are so few men around this year? We are 12 girls who would like to get together for that night and see the new year in, but I can't see what we could do other than just sit around and stare at each other and remember the fun we used to have. Have you any suggestions?

JINNY.

What a cheerful 12 you will be, staring the old year out! Of course you can have a party. Go to the theater or a movie, and to the home of one of you later for a bite to eat. Get up a bridge party, have a progressive dinner and wind up with a slumber party at the home of the girl who provides the last course. Or take some of the suggestions given in my New Year's Eve Party leaflet and my general party leaflet, combine them, and you will be able to have a grand time, boys or no boys. A stamped, self-addressed envelope will bring you both of them.

IN ANSWER TO "Lonely Wife": Talk matters over with a reputable lawyer or go to the Free Legal Aid Bureau in the Municipal Courts Building regarding your husband's obligation to support you.

CASE RECORDS

By Dr. George W. Crane

CASE E-248: Harry D, aged 36, is the husband of Dora described in last Sunday's column. "Dora loved me when we were first married," he admitted, "and I was crazy about her. But I concede that I was quite selfish and inattentive to her hunger for words and affection. I am an electrical engineer. I become so preoccupied with my work that I am not very glib with compliments. Maybe that is the fault of most of us introverts. But I am willing to make a valiant effort to show her that I can be a satisfactory husband. You said that love is like a beautiful melody. If we strike the right chords at the proper time, then the melody must come forth, whether the piano wishes to give forth such harmony or not. My wife says she is disinterested in me. Can mechanical behavior change our emotions?"

THE LAW OF GRAVITY will operate, regardless of your emotional disbelief or belief in it. Our psychological laws do likewise. You may take a Doubting-Thomas attitude, but if you honestly co-operate and wholeheartedly follow the techniques prescribed by psychology, your emotions will follow accordingly. "Go through the proper motions and you will soon experience the corresponding emotions." Despite Dora's disinterest in her husband at present, she can become head over heels in love with him again, if she will co-operate as prescribed. She can act her role, for all I care, and make a wager with me that she will never love her husband ardently again, but if she acts her part, she will soon feel the corresponding emotions. Turn a generator and an electrical current will miraculously be induced in the wires. It is inevitable. God made it that way. Go through the proper psychological procedure and miraculously you will feel a corresponding emotion suffusing your personality.

THERE ARE CERTAIN laws with reference to electricity, just as there are with reference to psychology. They work in spite of doubt and disbelief. Love is truly like a beautiful melody. If you strike the right chords in the proper tempo, the melody will issue forth. It can't do otherwise. But if you later grow careless and "flat" a note here or there, the melody no longer comes from the piano. Don't criticize the piano, however, or seek a later model. Eliminate your faulty habits! You can re-learn the correct technique and use the same piano to bring forth the same beautiful melody that you produced originally. A man and woman can fall in love. They can then grow careless and fall out of love. But if they are honest enough to keep an open mind, they can fall back in love again by going through the proper motions and pretty speeches. Send for my "Test for Husbands," enclosing a 3c stamped envelope, plus a dime. Use it, supplemented by the sex bulletin mentioned earlier this week, and you can regain your youthful happiness. Dora and her husband are now ardently in love, despite her insistence it couldn't happen.

The Merits Of Penicillin And Sulfas

By Logan Clendenen, M.D.

PENICILLIN has captured the popular imagination, and certainly gets most of the attention in the news about the new germ-destroying chemicals.

Yet an impartial review of the whole subject would indicate that not only more progress has been made in the study of the other groups of germicidal drugs, the sulfa drugs, but that they are really the more practical and serviceable.

Public imagination is an unaccountable phenomenon, although there is some reason for the attitude the public has formed about penicillin and the sulfa drugs. When the sulfa drugs were announced in 1935, they were immediately recognized as successful in many infections. They cut the mortality rate of pneumonia in half. They made obsolete many serums and antitoxins that the medical profession had been halfheartedly trying to indorse for years—such as anti-pneumococcus serum, anti-streptococcus serum against scarlet fever and anti-meningococcus serum against meningitis.

THEN, ALL OF A sudden, along came penicillin. It had a romantic story behind it. It is derived from a mold, and bacteria of certain kinds will not grow on cultures near that mold. A comparatively small grant of money for research sufficed to develop and perfect its actions.

Best of all, perhaps, for making the public avid for it was that they couldn't get any of it. They heard these fairylike tales of cures that were done in the large medical centers by special researchers who had been granted a small supply. The armed forces had it and everybody was glad of that.

But when the boy next door fell sick and just had the family doctor in, they couldn't get any penicillin. So human nature being what it is, everybody has been wanting what it couldn't get, and the reputation of penicillin has gone sky high.

Now that we are getting supplies of the product pretty generally available we find it has some faults.

ONE IS, THAT it is not absorbed by mouth, so it has to be given hypodermically either in a muscle or a vein. Then it is excreted so rapidly that it hardly stays in the body at all, and has to be given over and over in high quantities, or in great continuous amounts. And except in a somewhat limited group of cases, it is not any more effective than the sulfa drugs.

In the meantime research on the sulfa drugs, while not so well advertised, has gone forward rapidly. The sulfa drugs are absorbed by mouth, an enormous advantage in any drug, and they stay in the body and build up effective blood concentrations so strong that they kill off germs in all fluids and crannies of the body.

The attempt of research in this department has been to produce a drug which has the lowest toxic or poisonous qualities even when given in large amounts, and the highest germ-killing qualities. The drugs developed a few years ago, such as sulfanilamide, and sulfapyridine, had enormous improvements on what we had before, were highly toxic, and produced such disagreeable by-effects that they had to be continuously watched.

The latest drug of the series, a product of synthetic chemistry is sulfamerazine. It does not produce anywhere near as much of the nausea and bluing of the skin as the earlier ones of the series, and it enters the blood so rapidly that concentrations of a ratio of 50 can quickly be obtained, whereas the danger point of the older drugs was a ratio of 10 or 15. And it is a germ killer extraordinary. And your doctor can get it anywhere in 10 minutes.

General Tendencies—Tomorrow is not a time to run wild where health is concerned. Probably this tendency might have been noticed two days ago, simply coming to a climax today. Both the sun and moon are expected by the planet Saturn, which is enough to warn almost anyone to keep the feet dry and head clear. In business, put off all new ventures until the early part of 1945.

If Tomorrow Is Your Birthday, it's possible that you may be able to get your romantic interest settled during the first half of 1945, and in that case could weather the storms of the latter part of the year fairly easily, but do not try to start upon new emotion ventures during the summer months. There are certainly some strange experiences and many bruises in the sentiments for those who insist upon believing all they hear after next August.

Tomorrow's Watchword—In the Book of Rights compiled by Confucius, there are many paragraphs about the proper manners for the true man of learning. Confucius thought that everyone should do his best to make himself wise. "The scholar must keep himself free from stain," said he. "He does not go among the low, to make himself high. He does not seek out the foolish to make himself seem wise. He does not praise those who agree with him, or condemn those who differ."

The Trend Is Toward Bigger Bags

Unusual Shapes in Many Colors and Materials Now Being Featured

By Sylvia Stiles

A BAG DESIGNED TO HOLD ALL THE ASSORTED THINGS WOMEN PUT IN BAGS IS THIS MARK CROSS CAPESKIN WHICH TIES WITH LEATHER THONGS. THE CHANGE PURSE IS HAND-STITCHED TO MATCH THE GLOVES.

AFTER their experience of trudging homeward with their arms filled with Christmas packages, women are clamoring for big handbags. The bigger they are, the more popular to start the New Year. Little bags are all right for certain occasions, according to experienced shoppers, but when it comes to practical needs they will take the big, roomy bags every time.

Designed to please those who want to tuck everything from lipstick to parcels into one bag, are several striking overarm types which have appeared on the retail market within the last few weeks. These bags are equipped with adjustable handles so that they may be carried over the arm or slung over the shoulder. A postman's style of bag is a featured type, available in several different colors and materials. A powder horn shape is another which is among the most elegant on display because of its handsome woolen fabric and its brilliant decorations.

Anyone fortunate enough to get a new handbag for Christmas appreciates this gift this year because prices are higher than they have been, and such an item is a cherished possession. Those equipped with generous gift certificates are likely to invest in a handbag, so these new styles should be among their first considerations.

In the selection of a bag, care should be taken to determine the quality of material as well as workmanship. Shoddy bags are most unsatisfactory so pay a few extra dollars rather than accept inferior merchandise. Most bags get very hard usage—more so than most costume accessories—so see to it that they bear the marks of quality. Certain well-known trademarks are worthy of notice in buying a bag because the manufacturers are recognized for good products.

My Day -O- By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, Wednesday.

FOR the first time since the early days of the war, the people in this country are being tested by the war news. It is harder to bear today, because in the early days we could say that we had not been a war-like nation, that we had not wanted to make war, that we had not prepared for it and that our allies would therefore have to hold the fort until we were ready. No one could help us in the Pacific, and we took some pretty humiliating defeats. Yet the men we had in that area did a holding job which was magnificent, for it is harder to retreat and give way and keep morale high than it is to go forward.

Gradually, as we came into greater production, the picture in the Pacific changed. We have regained some of what we lost, and we have taken many more islands which the Japanese had occupied. We have inflicted blows from the air on their homeland. But all the time we have known that we had to do most of the aggressive work. Your One Real Enemy

By Elsie Robinson

YOU have only one real enemy. There may be scores of people you dislike and whom you suspect in return, scores who lie about you and try to belittle you . . . but there is only one person who has the power to warp and embitter your life. And that person is yourself.

"That is true," you say. "I've had enemies all my life. Undeserving enemies. Even when I was in kindergarten there were spiteful youngsters who went out of their way to tattletale on me and get me into trouble. Always there have been creatures like that—envious, jealous busybodies . . . two-faced hypocrites . . . bullies and tricksters. Always they've tried to hurt and shame me or spoil my plans. Yet you say I've only one real enemy!"

And I'm right. Mean people, cruel, dishonest people, you've always known them and you always will just as you've known countless other vexations. But no matter how malicious their schemes may be, only one person can give those schemes power over you—power to cripple your life, and that person is yourself.

Still you don't believe it. Stop and think. Let's suppose someone has told a lie about you. A deliberate, vicious lie which is spreading its poison secretly, causing people to wonder, whisper and sneer. Presently someone cuts you dead. Your best friends regard you with suspicion. You're puzzled. You investigate. You discover the truth. Then what? Then the real dirty work begins. For then you must choose whether you will let this wrong in your life become an active, festering force. Or whether you will chuck it out, by-pass its influence.

For whether this wrong shall live and flourish or whether it shall be forbidden and forgotten, is entirely up to you. Anyone may try to injure you, but only one person can decide whether you will accept or reject that injury—whether you will keep it outside or let it get under your hide. And that person is yourself.

Ever stop to think of life in that way? Chances are, you haven't. Right now, if you're human, you could name a list of would-be enemies a yard long. People who have a real or imagined grudge against you. People who want to start something, not because you have wronged them, but simply because their feverish natures crave excitement and they pick on you as a target.

You are aware of these people. The very thought of them makes you furious. You long for revenge. Yet you could foil every one of their malicious plans if you would simply by-pass them. Many unfair, untrue and brutal

The bidding:
North East South West
Pass Pass 1 club Pass
2 no-trump 3 spades 3 no-trump Pass
Pass Pass

Several of these bids were somewhat unorthodox, but East's three spade bid cannot be disposed of with such a weak word. To be frank, it was odious! The mere fact that his spade suit was seven long did not warrant a "stab" bid at the three level. It is true that South's deliberate underbid of one no-trump on the second round had something to do with trapping East. South decided that there was no game in the hand unless North could find another bid over one no-trump. North, for his part, felt that he could well afford to raise the no-trump despite the fact that he had made a practically psycho heart response previously.

Perhaps West should not have doubted the three no-trump, but on the bidding it was tempting. Certainly, he should not have opened the diamond as he did—a spade lead would have saved him many points. On the diamond lead declarer won with the ten and ran all the clubs and the two spades. West held grimly to his king-jack of hearts and ace-queen of diamonds, not even considering getting out of the way with the heart king. Thereupon declarer cashed the heart ace and threw West in with the heart king, so that West had to surrender another diamond trick to the king. The two extra tricks redoubled gave North-South an impressive score!

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

AM a man nearing 40, have never been married or even in love till recently. Two years ago I became acquainted with my next-door neighbor, a man and his wife, with two children, ages 13 and 8. This man was a heavy drinker, always wanted my company at all times. When drinking he was most profane and abusive and even tried to strike his wife, which I prevented, several times. I began to feel very sorry for her and tried to be kind to her whenever I could. My treatment for her was mistaken for love, which it was not for a long time. Then I did fall in love with her, as she had with me. Her children and I were fond of each other and had good times together. This woman's husband discovered our affection for each other, but refused her a divorce. I moved from the neighborhood, but still see her. He goes around telling everyone I have stolen his wife and am a rat, but doesn't treat her any better, and has even threatened my life. He has been increasingly abusive to her so that she is afraid to start divorce proceedings. We love each other so much we can't give each other up. What do you think we should do?

HOPELESS.

The final break should have been made when you left the neighborhood. To continue to see this woman is only making her life harder, causing her husband to be that much more abusive. Why she meekly endures such treatment is a mystery. Even if she is afraid of him she does not need to submit, for the police will protect her if she asks it. If she will go to Frank X. Keller, Children's Building, Thirteenth and Clark, he may be able to make her husband see the error of his ways. Or if she definitely wants to leave him, then she should talk matters over with a lawyer and follow whatever course he suggests to her. Your presence will only make matters harder for her while this is going on, so unless this woman makes a definite break and divorces her husband, the greatest kindness you can do will be to keep away from her and not interfere.

Dear Martha Carr:

DO YOU THINK THERE WOULD be any use trying to have a New Year's Eve party when there are so few men around this year? We are 12 girls who would like to get together for that night and see the new year in, but I can't see what we could do other than just sit around and stare at each other and remember the fun we used to have. Have you any suggestions?

JINNY.

What a cheerful 12 you will be, staring the old year out! Of course you can have a party. Go to the theater or a movie, and to the home of one of you later for a bite to eat. Get up a bridge party, have a progressive dinner and wind up with a slumber party at the home of the girl who provides the last course. Or take some of the suggestions given in my New Year's Eve Party leaflet and my general party leaflet, combine them, and you will be able to have a grand time, boys or no boys. A stamped, self-addressed envelope will bring you both of them.

IN ANSWER TO "Lonely Wife": Talk matters over with a reputable lawyer or go to the Free Legal Aid Bureau in the Municipal Courts Building regarding your husband's obligation to support you.

CASE RECORDS

By Dr. George W. Crane

CASE E-248: Harry D, aged 36, is the husband of Dora described in last Sunday's column. "Dora loved me when we were first married," he admitted, "and I was crazy about her. But I concede that I was quite selfish and inattentive to her hunger for words and affection. I am an electrical engineer. I become so preoccupied with my work that I am not very glib with compliments. Maybe that is the fault of most of us introverts. But I am willing to make a valiant effort to show her that I can be a satisfactory husband. You said that love is like a beautiful melody. If we strike the right chords at the proper time, then the melody must come forth, whether the piano wishes to give forth such harmony or not. My wife says she is disinterested in me. Can mechanical behavior change our emotions?"

THE LAW OF GRAVITY will operate, regardless of your emotional disbelief or belief in it. Our psychological laws do likewise. You may take a Doubting Thomas attitude, but if you honestly co-operate and wholeheartedly follow the techniques prescribed by psychology, your emotions will follow accordingly. "Go through the proper motions and you will soon experience the corresponding emotions." Despite Dora's disinterest in her husband at present, she can become head over heels in love with him again, if she will co-operate as prescribed. She can act her role, for all I care, and make a wager with me that she will never love her husband ardently again, but if she acts her part, she will soon feel the corresponding emotions. Turn a generator and an electrical current will miraculously be induced in the wires. It is inevitable. God made it that way. Go through the proper psychological procedure and miraculously you will feel a corresponding emotion suffusing your personality.

THERE ARE CERTAIN laws with reference to electricity, just as there are with reference to psychology. They work in spite of doubt and disbelief. Love is truly like a beautiful melody. If you strike the right cords in the proper tempo, the melody will issue forth. It can't do otherwise. But if you later grow careless and "flat" a note here or there, the melody no longer comes from the piano. Don't criticize the piano, however, or seek a later model. Eliminate your faulty habits! You can re-learn the correct technique and use the same piano to bring forth the same beautiful melody that you produced originally. A man and woman can fall in love. They can then grow careless and fall out of love. But if they are honest enough to keep an open mind, they can fall back in love again by going through the proper motions and pretty speeches. Send for my "Test for Husbands," enclosing a 30 stamped envelope, plus a dime. Use it, supplemented by the sex bulletin mentioned earlier this week, and you can regain your youthful happiness. Dora and her husband are now ardently in love, despite her insistence it couldn't happen.

The Merits Of Penicillin And Sulfas

By Logan Clendening, M.D.

PENICILLIN has captured the popular imagination, and certainly gets most of the attention in the news about the new germ-destroying chemicals. Yet an impartial review of the whole subject would indicate that not only more progress has been made in the study of the other groups of germicidal drugs, the sulfa drugs, but that they are really the more practical and serviceable.

Public imagination is an unaccountable phenomenon, although there is some reason for the attitude the public has formed about penicillin and the sulfa drugs.

When the sulfa drugs were announced in 1935, they were immediately recognized as successful in many infections. They cut the mortality rate of pneumonia in half. They made obsolete the serums and antitoxins that the medical profession had been halfheartedly trying to indorse for years—such as anti-pneumococcus serum, anti-streptococcus serum against scarlet fever and anti-meningococcus serum against meningitis.

THEN, ALL OF A sudden, along came penicillin. It had a romantic story behind it. It is derived from a mold, and bacteria of certain kinds will not grow on cultures near that mold. A comparatively small grant of money for research sufficed to develop and perfect its actions.

Best of all, perhaps, for making the public avid for it was that they couldn't get any of it. They heard these fairy-like tales of cures that were done in the large medical centers by special researchers who had been granted a small supply. The armed forces had it and everybody was glad of that.

But when the boy next door fell sick and just had the family doctor in, they couldn't get any penicillin. So human nature being what it is, everybody has been wanting what it couldn't get, and the reputation of penicillin has gone sky high.

Now that we are getting supplies of the product pretty generally available we find it has some faults.

ONE IS, THAT it is not absorbed by mouth, so it has to be given hypodermically either as a muscle or a vein. Then it is excreted so rapidly that it hardly stays in the body at all, and has to be given over and over in high quantities, or given continuously. And except in a somewhat limited group of cases, it is not any more effective than the sulfa drugs.

In the meantime research on the sulfa drugs, while not so well advertised, has gone forward rapidly. The sulfa drugs are absorbed by mouth, an enormous advantage in any drug, and they stay in the body and build up effective blood concentrations so strong that they kill off germs in all fluids and crannies of the body.

The attempt of research in this department has been to produce a drug which has the lowest toxic or poisonous qualities even when given in large amounts, and the highest germ-killing qualities. The drugs developed a few years ago, such as sulfanilamide, and sulfaipyridine, while enormous improvements on what we had before, were highly toxic, and produced such disagreeable by-effects that they had to be continuously watched.

The latest drug of the series, a product of synthetic chemistry, is sulfamerazine. It does not produce anywhere near as much of the nausea and bluing of the skin as the earlier ones of the series, and it enters the blood so rapidly that concentrations of a ratio of 50 can quickly be obtained, whereas the danger point of the older drugs was a ratio of 10 or 15. And it is a germ killer extraordinary. And your doctor can get it anywhere in 10 minutes.

WHAT TO EXPECT TOMORROW.

Sun in Capricorn.

General Tendencies—Tomorrow is not a time to run risks where health is concerned. Probably this tendency might have been noticed two days ago, simply coming to a climax today. Both the sun and moon are aspected by the planet Saturn, which is enough to warn almost anyone to keep the feet dry and head clear. In business, put off all new ventures until the early part of 1945.

If Tomorrow Is Your Birthday. It's possible that you may be able to get your romantic interests settled during the first half of 1945, and in that case could weather the storms of the latter part of the year fairly easily, but do not try to start upon new emotion ventures during the summer months. There are certainly some strange experiences and many bruises in the sentiments for those who insist upon believing all they hear after next August.

Tomorrow's Watchword—In the Book of Rights compiled by Confucius, there are many paragraphs about the proper manners for the true man of learning. Confucius thought that everyone should do his best to make himself wise. "The scholar must keep himself free from stain," said he. "He does not go among the low to make himself high. He does not seek out the foolish to make himself seem wise. He does not praise those who agree with him, or condemn those who differ.

The Trend Is Toward Bigger Bags

A BAG DESIGNED TO HOLD ALL THE ASSORTED THINGS WOMEN PUT IN BAGS IS THIS MARK CROSS CAPEKIN WHICH TIES WITH LEATHER THONGS. THE CHANGE PURSE IS HAND-STITCHED TO MATCH THE GLOVES.

AFTER their experience of trudging homeward with their arms filled with Christmas packages, women are clamoring for big handbags. The bigger they are, the more popular to start the New Year. Little bags are all right for certain occasions, according to experienced shoppers, but when it comes to practical needs they will take the big, roomy bags every time.

Designed to please those who want to tuck everything from lipstick to parcels into one bag, are several striking overarm types which have appeared on the retail market within the last few weeks. These bags are equipped with adjustable handles so that they may be carried over the arm or slung over the shoulder. A postman's style of bag is a featured type, available in several different colors and materials. A powder horn shape is another which is among the most elegant on display because of its handsome woolen fabric and its brilliant decorations.

Anyone fortunate enough to get a new handbag for Christmas appreciates this gift this year because prices are higher than they ever have been, and such an item is a cherished possession. Those equipped with generous gift certificates are likely to invest in a handbag, so these new styles should be among their first considerations.

In the selection of a bag, care should be taken to determine the quality of material as well as workmanship. Shoddy bags are most unsatisfactory so pay a few extra dollars rather than accept inferior merchandise. Most bags get very hard usage—more so than most costume accessories—so see to it that they bear the marks of quality. Certain well-known trademarks are worthy of notice in buying a bag because the manufacturers are recognized for good products.

My Day

-O- By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, Wednesday.

FOR the first time since the early days of the war, the people in this country are being tested by the war news. It is harder to bear today, because in the early days we could say that we had not been a war-like nation, that we had not wanted to make war, that we had not prepared for it and that our allies would therefore have to hold the fort until we were ready. No one could help us in the Pacific, and we took some pretty humiliating defeats. Yet the men we had in that area did a holding job which was magnificent, for it is harder to retreat and give way to keep morale high than it is to go forward.

Gradually, as we came into greater production, the picture in the Pacific changed. We have regained some of what we lost, and we have taken many more islands which the Japanese had occupied. We have inflicted blows from the air on their homeland. But all the time we have known that we had to do most of the aggressive work. China, after many years of war, was doing a magnificent defensive job, but we knew that we had to come to her assistance, important as she was to us because of her resistance.

I think we are probably better prepared in our minds for the long war in the Pacific than we at first were for the slow hard fighting on the Italian peninsula. Very few people in this country remembered the mountainous terrain our men would have to fight through. Sunny Italy was all we thought about, not snow and ice, cold and rain and mountains, with the enemy on top, which had to be crossed. That has been a long, hard, mile-by-mile campaign.

Then we landed in France, and romped across that country with a liberated people cheering us on. The enemy fell back, but in pretty good order, shortening their supply lines with every day's retreat.

as we lengthened ours. When they reached a point where they decided to stand and counterattack, it was a surprise to us at home. Probably our Generals knew that some day this point would have to be reached. Just when it would come they knew possibly no better than anyone else, since we cannot read other people's minds. But I imagine that our men hoped they would advance into Germany as fast as they had crossed France, and the loss of the territory which they fought so hard to gain must be a bitter disappointment to them.

There may be people here who would say—Why do we have to fight our way across Germany? But those are the people who have forgotten what happened in the last war. They do not remember the German army's boast that it was never beaten—that only the German people at home let the army down—or they try to belittle what we are doing now. But there is no more the same risk again. This is total war, and we fight in spirit with our men overseas. We know that we have to produce more if they need more; that there have to be nurses for the wounded and supplies of food for our men, as well as for the liberated peoples who are hungry and cannot help in their weakened condition. We civilians have so far been annoyed by the war, but still on the whole we are comfortable at home. Our great suffering has been in the loss of our dear ones. Now we may have to face some of the physical hardships of a nation making a really great war effort. No hardships will equal those endured by our men at the battlefront.

Several of these bids were somewhat unorthodox, but East's three spade bid cannot be disposed of with such a weak word. To be frank, it was odiferous! The mere fact that his spade suit was seven long did not warrant a "stab" bid at the three level. It is true that South's deliberate underbid of one no-trump on the second round had something to do with trapping East. South decided that there was no game in the hand unless North could find another bid over one no-trump. North, for his part, felt that he could well afford to raise the no-trump despite the fact that he had made a practically psycho heart response previously.

Perhaps West should not have doubled the three no-trump, but on the bidding it was tempting. Certainly, he should not have opened the diamond as he did—a spade lead would have saved him many points. On the diamond lead declarer won with the ten and ran all the clubs against the two spades. West held grimly to his king-jack of hearts and ace-queen of diamonds, not even considering getting out of the way with the heart king. Thereupon declarer cashed the heart ace and threw West in with the heart king, so that West had to surrender another diamond trick to the king. The two extra tricks redoubled gave North-South an impressive score!

things may happen to you. You cannot prevent most of these misfortunes, but you can prevent such misfortunes from crippling your life if you refuse them admittance into your inner guarded spirit.

You are the keeper of your spirit. All hell may burst loose around you. But the legions of hell shall prevail against you if you will lift your head . . . lock your heart . . . smile . . . and go on your way.
